INDEX OF VOTES

Votes taken by the Supreme Court Advisory Committee during this session are reflected on the following pages:

1                   CHAIRMAN SOULES:   Okay.  It's 2                   8:30, and we'll begin.  Our welcome to 3                   everybody.  I appreciate your being here so 4                   punctually today, and we'll be sending around 5                   a signup list for you to sign.

6                   As the week matured, Holly and I started 7                   checking to find what we could reliably expect 8                   out of this meeting out of the agenda.  It 9                   became pretty apparent that we're not going to 10                  need to work tomorrow, so I hope you got your 11                  fax that we would work today but not 12                  tomorrow.  Some of you may have hotel rooms 13                  that you have to pay for anyway, and I regret 14                  that, but I think nonetheless that ought to be 15                  turned in as an expense.  I have a hotel room
16                  that I have to pay for, but I didn't cancel
17                  it.  I figured if I was going to have to pay 18                  for it, there might be some chance somebody 19                  here might need it.  It's at the Four Seasons.
20                  So if anyone needs that room, if you will let 21                  me know, even if I have to go by and check you 22                  in at the end of this meeting, it's no problem
23                  for me and I'd be happy to accommodate anybody 24                  who might need that.

25                  We only have three areas to cover today.

1 The Rules of Evidence Buddy Low is going to 2 talk about; there are just a few items that 3 are left on the 216 to 295 Rules which Judge
4 Peeples is going to cover, since Paula won't 5 be here; and then a report by Richard
6 Orsinger, which he thought would take a half a 7 day. It may take longer; it may take 8 shorter. But from the looks of things, 9 there's probably a pretty good chance that 10 we'll be able to get out of here very shortly 11 after lunch, but obviously not trying to push 12 the train faster than it needs to be pushed.
13 Except for some things that Richard will be 14 talking about, I think most of these other 15 items have been at least discussed before.

16 Since we're not on the clock, I don't 17 suppose making the day any longer than shorter 18 helps anything as long as we get our work 19 done. Buddy Low just mentioned that if we get 20 done by 3:00 he can get transportation, so I 21 imagine that's pretty much the case with 22 everybody. There's a better chance to get out 23 of here if we do, but nonetheless, it's 24 important what we do and that we fully debate
25 all of these items and get everybody's ideas

1 on the table and on the record for 2 consideration.

3 So Buddy, with that, let me just turn to 4 you for your committee report. And we'll 5 cover evidence first since Judge Clinton is 6 here and may not be able to stay for the 7 duration of the meeting after we cover those 8 items that his court is interested in.

9 MR. LOW: Let me go to the end 10 first and comment, and then we'll come back to 11 that last, and that's the Unified Rules. One 12 of the clerks in the Supreme Court went 13 through sometime back and tried to unify the 14 rules but also to clean them up, correct
15 gender, grammar, things of that nature, strike
16 out "he" and put "the judge," but make no 17 substantive changes.

18 Now, Mike has worked with us on that.
19 He's kind of been in charge of that and got a 20 copy and I got a copy to Luke. We sent them
21 out with the order to make no substantive 22 changes other than two or three things that 23 I'll comment on at the end. And I think the 24 best thing to do there is just everybody has a 25 copy. We'll look them over, I'll relook at 1           them and see if there are any corrections or 2           anything that we need to do or anything that 3           we've done that we shouldn't have.

4                   And Judge Clinton is here, and I've 5           explained to him what we did, and he will look 6           those over.

7                   For instance, they didn't take out or 8           just segregate 407. It applies to civil 9           only. The federal rules don't do that. I 10          mean, if it doesn't apply, you're not going to 11          have a problem with it if it doesn't apply to 12          criminal, so in the Unified Rules we didn't go 13          that far.

14                   Now, where they differ, then we did have 15          to show in the criminal, but we didn't change 16          the substance. And you get into like some of 17          the deposition rules and so forth and you'll 18          see that. Bill.

19                           PROFESSOR DORSANEO: At the 20          last meeting we got a draft of the proposed 21          Unified Rules along with two disposition
22          tables. Is that the same thing?

23                           MR. LOW: That's basically it.
24          And we will comment on some things the 25          subcommittee voted on.

1                   PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Is what we 2 have right here the same thing as the other 3 thing, or is this different?

4                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: It's more
5 recent. It's been revised.

6                   MR. LOW: It's been revised in 7 about four little minor areas. We had a 8 little tune-up, put a little baling wire on 9 four little areas. But if it's not right, we 10 can cut it off pretty quick.

11                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: This says
12 "Draft," and it said August 6th, and you
13 struck through that, and it says September 12, 14 1996. That's what you're looking at, right?

15                   MR. LOW: Right.

16                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: And this is 17 the Proposed Unified Rules, and that's the 18 latest thing.

19                   HON. SAM HOUSTON CLINTON: I
20 didn't get one.

21                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: They're back
22 up here. And then along with that there 23 are -- well, anyway, let's just get to that 24 and you can tell us what you did.

25                   MR. LOW: Well, that's not -- I

1 want to go back in logical order. I'm merely 2 commenting on that so everybody would not feel 3 like at the end that we're going to spend 4 three hours on those, because they're the 5 longest portion, but really they're the 6 shortest as far as time requirements.

7 Our committee met recently and we went 8 back and I prepared a table. You'll see 9 charts showing action taken by the Supreme 10 Court Advisory Committee No. 2, and that 11 reflects action that was taken at the last 12 meeting on 509(d)(6), 510(d)(6) of the Civil 13 Rules.

14 The first time we met we discussed how 15 Richard was going to his committee to try to 16 get some kind of agreement. I understand that 17 his committee was not prepared to make any 18 type of agreement. The committee at that time
19 voted to delete (6) from both rules, and (6) 20 is, as I put in my outline, that portion "when 21 the disclosure is relevant in any suit
22 affecting the parent-child relationship."

23 And then we wanted to make the rules 24 consistent. One had --- 509 or 510, I've 25 forgotten, didn't include administrative

1 proceedings. The committee voted to put that 2 in so they would be consistent. So we've 3 really done nothing there, but I point that 4 out so that it brings things to focus as to 5 where we've been. Richard.

6 MR. ORSINGER: Let me just make 7 one clarification that the family law council 8 voted not to recommend a change, and the 9 consensus of the majority was not to change
10 the rule in any way. But based on our debate
11 here, I think the committee decided to delete 12 that "suit affecting the parent-child 13 relationship" exception.

14 MR. LOW: No, I understand
15 that.

16 CHAIRMAN SOULES: That's 17 correct

18 MR. LOW: And maybe I misstated
19 it, and to the extent you've corrected me, I 20 agree with you, because I wasn't there.

21 The next thing is a new rule to limit
22 compensation paid to experts. That was voted 23 down by the committee, it's my understanding, 24 and I've so reflected that.

25 Then there was a new rule allowing the

1 court to appoint experts and a judge to 2 comment and so forth. It's my understanding 3 the committee voted that down, thank goodness, 4 and so that is that.

5 Now, turn to previously considered
6 matters, and let's see, these are cleanup
7 matters we've already discussed even before
8 then. 412 Criminal, do you have that, Judge?

9 HON. SAM HOUSTON CLINTON: I
10 don't have what you have, that's for sure.

11 Oh, yes. Oh, indecency. Well, yeah, we 12 discussed that here this last meeting.

13 MR. LOW: Right. It was voted 14 no change.

15 HON. SAM HOUSTON CLINTON:
16 Right.

17 MR. LOW: Now, these were 18 matters that were considered by the State Bar 19 Committee, Mark, I believe your committee, and 20 so we went back and considered those things.
21 The committee here had already determined no 22 change on 412 Criminal, 503, no change on 23 705 Civil.

24 On 1009 Criminal there was a draft. The 25 committee made a change to the draft by Mark's

1 committee. The Evidence Subcommittee met and 2 drew up a new rule which should be discussed 3 generally, and we're going to discuss that on 4 today's agenda. I'll get to that. That's at 5 the end of the today's agenda, but the 6 Evidence Subcommittee did meet on that.

7 407 Criminal and Civil, we considered
8 that and voted against the proposal of Mark's 9 committee, so there will be no change.

10 On 702, 703, 704 and 705, duPont vs.
11 Robinson, that was voted against. I believe 12 Mark's committee wanted a comment. The 13 comment was voted against, but we will discuss 14 that on today's agenda. There is a question 15 of whether or not there should be a rule, and 16 if so, what the rule should be. If there is 17 going to be a rule, should there be a 18 procedure, and would the procedure come within 19 that rule or the procedure rules, or how?

20 So that brings us up to date as to what 21 is on today's agenda. We first considered
22 606 Civil and Criminal. Mark's committee
23 voted to amend the rule and follow amendment
24 to Rule 327. Our committee voted to follow 25 Rule 327 with one change, and I believe that

1 change was made in 327, so it's moot.

2 As you will see here attached on 327,
3 Procedure for Misconduct, where it says -- it
4 did have the words "any other juror's mind," 5 and it should have just said "any juror's 6 mind," because the one that's talking
7 shouldn't be able to reflect what's on his own 8 mind.

9 And I believe I'm correct that 327, 10 Holly, was corrected? The word "other" was 11 taken out, was it not?

12 MS. DUDERSTADT: Yes.

13 MR. LOW: Okay. So the first 14 time our committee voted on that, we voted to 15 follow Rule 327, so that rule as drawn should 16 be totally consistent word for word with 327 17 and consistent with what we previously voted 18 on.

19 CHAIRMAN SOULES: What is this 20 rule?

21 MR. LOW: 327 on jury
22 misconduct. It said "may not testify as to 23 any matter." The first part was not changed.

24 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Now, you're 25 talking about 606, right? Evidence Rule 606?

1 MR. LOW: Yes, I'm sorry.

2 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. And 3 we've changed that to track Rule of Civil 4 Procedure 327?

5 MR. LOW: Right.

6 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Gotcha.

7 MR. LOW: I don't remember the 8 change, but there were some -- it is broader, 9 because they're not overlapping or not totally 10 overlapping. And we did make some changes 11 which we voted, and those are reflected in 12 there, and the only other thing left to be 13 done was to follow Civil Rule 327.

14 All right. The next was 702. The SCAC
15 voted to table this at the first meeting. At 16 the second meeting we voted not to have a 17 comment on 702, as Mark's committee had 18 voted. It was voted -- just a minute, let me 19 go back. This was -- hold on...

20 MR. MARKS: Buddy, can you talk 21 up a little bit?

22 MR. LOW: All right. Two 23 members of our committee voted -- no, wait a 24 minute. I misspoke. Let me take it back.
25 702 is the duPont vs. Robinson situation. All

1 right. We discussed that once, and that was 2 tabled. We, the Evidence Subcommittee voted 3 that no rule be drawn. You know, just to 4 leave it. It's still in the making, because 5 there's a case up in the Court now. duPont 6 vs. Robinson has finally been overruled. But 7 in the event that we want a rule, then we've 8 got one that can be a model, and we can decide 9 how to correct that, whether we want to accept 10 it as it is, and we've even drawn up a 11 procedure as such, you know, for when you have 12 to make objections. But our recommendation 13 has been that we do nothing on that.

14 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Buddy,
15 so I'm looking at your chart here, going back 16 about -- there's a yellow page behind that 17 about three or four pages back, and then it 18 says Rule 702 Civil and Criminal, and then the 19 second page of that starts a rule that has a 20 lot of redlining and additions to it?

21 MR. LOW: Right.

22 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Now, that's 23 the addition that could be used if the 24 Committee chooses to go along with it?

25 MR. LOW: That it true. Now,

1 let me clarify that. Our committee -- I drew 2 this. Our committee didn't try to substitute
3 word for word. This was just something we 4 knew if we did try to draw a rule, since we 5 are voting that there be no rule, that there 6 would be a lot of corrections, and we decided 7 we would just go with this. But this is not 8 something that my committee is necessarily 9 pushing.

10 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. You're 11 just following the instructions of the Chair 12 to bring something that the Committee can 13 consider in case they want to do it?

14 MR. LOW: Correct.

15 CHAIRMAN SOULES: And if they 16 do want to do it, we've got something to start 17 on. And if they don't want to do it, then we 18 can scratch it?

19 MR. LOW: Right.

20 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. That's 21 what's here.

22 MR. LOW: And you'll see behind
23 there, Luke, is a procedural type rule. And 24 that again is my creation along with Hadley
25 Edgar's. I got Hadley to just help me draw up

1 a procedural rule, if we wanted one on that,
2 and Hadley and I worked on that. Again,
3 that's not something that the Evidence 4 Subcommittee had just said, "Okay, I want to 5 have this word that way," that is just a form 6 rule which would form a basis for this 7 committee to work from and make suggestions.

8 CHAIRMAN SOULES: All right.
9 Your subcommittee recommends no change to 702?

10 MR. LOW: Right. It was a 11 unanimous vote, wasn't it, John?

12 MR. MARKS: Pardon?

13 MR. LOW: We all agreed on 14 that, all four of us?

15 MR. MARKS: Yes, we did.

16 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. That 17 doesn't need a second since it comes from 18 subcommittee. Do we need any discussion on 19 this? Those who agree no change to 702 show
20 by hands. 11.

21 Those who think we should change 702 show
22 by hands.

23 11 to nothing for no change.

24 MR. LOW: Okay. Now, next is 25 503(a)(2) Civil. At the first meeting it was

1           tabled by this committee. Mark's committee
2           voted for an amendment. The proposal was to 3           extend the control group test. Now, that's 4           really National Tank. That's what it is.

5           Two people on my committee voted not to 6           change it. Two people voted to change it and 7           proposed a rule. Basically the argument 8           against changing it was that we're going to 9           more open discovery now, even to where an 10          attorney takes a statement, and we don't need 11          to then close discovery here.

12          The argument for changing it was that if 13          a lower-echelon person hired a lawyer, there 14          still ought to be a privilege.

15          Am I somewhat correct on that?

16                       MR. MARKS: Yeah. Do you want 17          me to --

18                       MR. LOW: Yeah, you may address 19          that, because John was in favor of it.

20                       CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. John 21          Marks.

22                       MR. MARKS: In a lot of 23          corporate situations you have risk managers or 24          people who are actually dealing with lawyers 25          and dealing with litigation who technically

1 would not be under the cloak of the privilege
2 as it is written now. And it seems grossly
3 unfair that those people working with lawyers,
4 dealing with them, that sort of thing on a 5 day-to-day basis don't have the ability to 6 have that sort of privilege.

7 And it seemed to us that that was a 8 problem with our rule and perhaps maybe the 9 federal rule; that you had people working on 10 law cases, getting involved in the strategy of 11 the case, getting involved in all that sort of 12 thing without really having that cloak of 13 privilege around it, and it just seems wrong 14 for that to be the result.

15 And I think the problem was raised in 16 National Tank vs. Brotherton, and the Court
17 mentioned and talked about this and what it 18 meant. And that's really the reason why we 19 felt that the change needed to be made.

20 CHAIRMAN SOULES: What is the 21 effect of the change, John?

22 MR. MARKS: The effect of the 23 change is -- well, let me just read to you 24 what we proposed.

25 Right now it reads, the definition, "A

1 client is a person, public officer, or 2 corporation, association, or other 3 organization or entity either public or 4 private, who is rendered professional legal 5 services by a lawyer, or who consults a lawyer 6 with a view to obtaining professional legal 7 services from that lawyer."

8 (2), "A representative of a client other 9 than a legal entity is one having authority to 10 obtain professional legal services, or to act 11 on advice rendered pursuant thereto, on behalf 12 of the client."

13 What we're suggesting is that that be 14 broken down into two subparts, and the first 15 subpart would be, "If the client is a legal 16 entity other than a natural person, a
17 representative of such a client is: (A),
18 a partner, officer, director, or employee
19 having authority either to obtain professional 20 legal services or to act on advice rendered 21 pursuant thereto on behalf of the entity; or

22 "(B), an agent or employee of the entity
23 who has been requested by such partner,
24 officer, director, or such superior employee
25 to communicate with a lawyer on a subject

1 matter within the scope of the employee's or 2 agent's duties in connection with securing
3 legal advice by the entity. The term 'agent'
4 in this Rule does not include independent 5 contractor."

6 So it actually expands it. It broadens
7 the cloak of privilege within the corporate 8 setting.

9 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Discussion.
10 We'll start with Richard Orsinger and then go 11 around the table here.

12 MR. ORSINGER: Okay. Luke,
13 I've got more than one thing.

14 But John, the first thing I would like to 15 ask is that in looking at my copy of the Rules 16 of Civil Evidence 503(a)(2), I see that 17 there's a difference here between your 18 nonunderlined part of (a)(2). The rule in my 19 rulebook says, "A representative of the client 20 is one having authority to."

21 Your rule, the committee proposed draft 22 says "A representative of a client other than 23 a legal entity is one having."

24 Now --

25 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: Don't

1 you mean other than a natural person?

2 MR. ORSINGER: Well, it appears
3 from the proposed draft that we would not,
4 absent this change, have a definition for what 5 the client is when it's a nonperson, but in 6 reality we do. We have a rule right now. It 7 says a representative of a client is so and 8 so, and it doesn't have mismatched or unequal 9 treatment for a non-natural person.

10 And I'm wondering if I'm right in my 11 thinking, and if so, then what's wrong with 12 the current definition of a representative of 13 a client?

14 MR. MARKS: I'm not sure I'm 15 following you.

16 MR. ORSINGER: Well, if you
17 look at 503(a)(2) in the current rules, it 18 reads just like the committee draft 503(a)(2), 19 a representative of a client. But the 20 committee draft that says "other than a legal 21 entity," does not reflect that that's new 22 language. If you look at the current rule, 23 that phrase "other than a legal entity" is not 24 in the current rule.

25 Well, that phrase "other than a legal

1           entity" leaves the rule undefined or 2           nonapplicable to businesses, to corporations.
3           But the current rule does not do that. The 4           current rule does not say that corporations 5           are treated differently from natural persons.

6                     Do you see what I'm saying?

7                             MR. MARKS: Well, I think so.
8           But I think the whole point is that if you 9           treat a corporation like an individual, there 10          may be only one individual in the corporate 11          structure that can authorize the retention of 12          lawyers and act on lawyers' advice, when in 13          fact there are a lot of people that deal with 14          lower-echelon folks, not the president, not 15          the vice president, not the corporate 16          officers, but risk managers and people like 17          that who have responsibilities with respect to 18          litigation that don't fall into that category.

19                     That's the whole reason for trying to 20          expand it so that someone that deals with that 21          sort of thing is protected.

22                             MR. LOW: Luke, let me explain 23          one thing before you get to the discussion on 24          the history of it.

25                             CHAIRMAN SOULES: Buddy Low.

1 MR. LOW: I did not draw this.
2 I think the State Bar Committee drew it, and 3 they had input from John Sutton, who had a 4 rule, and I'm going to get around to your 5 point. I don't favor this. I'm just telling 6 you this from a historical point of view and 7 what they were trying to do from my 8 understanding.

9 Witherspoon was considered. What was the 10 other one, Mark?

11 MR. SALES: Meredith. Meredith
12 was the key case on this which this was based

13 MR. LOW: Yeah, Meredith and 14 Witherspoon. So they attempted to make it
15 where it would be like a representative of a 16 client. There's no question about the client, 17 but they attempted just to focus on the 18 representative of a client. Okay? So a 19 representative of a client other than a legal 20 entity, and a client of a legal entity; in 21 other words, an individual or a corporation or 22 a legal entity, partnership or whatever.

23 So that was what they were trying to 24 divide. The rule -- "client" is defined here, 25 and that's -- but they wanted it to apply to

1 individuals as well as corporate clients or 2 that type thing. Now, whether that is the way
3 it's drawn, I don't know, but that was what 4 was intended.

5 Now, I'm sorry, Luke, I turn it back over 6 to you.

7 MR. ORSINGER: Well, I can go
8 back and say I think we need to go back and 9 underline the phrase "other than a legal 10 entity," because the committee report is 11 recommending deferential treatment.

12 And secondly, I think 503(a)(2)(A) is 13 pretty much tantamount to the current rule, 14 and that the real change that's being proposed 15 is in 503(a)(2)(B), and that if you analyze 16 503(a)(2)(B), it's quite a bit broader than 17 just someone who has to consult with the 18 lawyer or someone who can act on the advice of 19 the lawyer. It would include anyone who talks 20 to the lawyer at the request of the employer, 21 perhaps about just the factual details of a 22 situation, without regard to whether the 23 lawyer is going to give that person advice or 24 is going to be receiving that information and 25 formulating legal advice.

1           And so I see this pretty much colliding
2 with what we've done on our work product, you 3 know, with our discovery on work product and 4 things like that. I mean, I'm not necessarily 5 speaking against it.

6           Secondly, something that people seem to 7 forget is that National Tank Lines case was a
8 plurality opinion. It was not a majority 9 opinion, and it does not constitute stare
10 decisis and it is not the law of this state 11 unless we make it the law of this state in 12 this rule.

13           That's my opinion, and I don't think 14 there's been any subsequent Supreme Court 15 activity that would make it so. It's the 16 opinion of four justices and with sufficient 17 concurrences in the result to where it had 18 more votes than anyone else, but it really 19 doesn't represent the law, and we need to look 20 at this as being in my view a change in the 21 law.

22                           MR. LOW: Bill, I think.

23                           CHAIRMAN SOULES: Bill

24                           Dorsaneo.

25                           PROFESSOR DORSANEO: I would

1 just recommend that if we don't vote this down 2 altogether that the phrase "other than a legal 3 entity" that's now underlined in the first 4 line be changed to "who is a natural person."

5 MR. MARKS: "Other than someone 6 who is a natural person"?

7 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Yeah. A
8 representative of a client who is a natural 9 person as one having authority. And then I
10 would recommend that the underlined sentence 11 be changed to say "if the client is a legal 12 entity rather than a natural person." I 13 prefer "rather" than "other." I realize that 14 you could say a person is a legal entity or a 15 natural person is a legal entity, but I think 16 we're really talking about legal entities who 17 are not natural persons.

18 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Going
19 down the table here, who is next? Rusty?
20 Don Hunt? Mark Sales?

21 MR. SALES: First, I was the 22 chairman of the Rules of Evidence Committee
23 the year that this proposal came up. I think 24 it was 1994, so it was shortly after the 25 National Tank case. We had a subcommittee put

1 together, and I'm not sure whether all of the 2 materials that were generated by that 3 subcommittee got to Buddy or not. I'm not 4 sure if you got --

5 MR. LOW: Yeah, I got it. I've 6 got more materials than I can digest.

7 MR. SALES: Dee and Sutton did
8 a lengthy memo, I believe. Lee Currington, 9 who was the chairperson of that committee, 10 also did a report. There was quite a bit of 11 work product that went into it.

12 The idea behind it was to analyze how the 13 control group test related to what other 14 courts were doing, whether it recognized the 15 reality of practice when you're representing a 16 corporation.

17 To begin with, the National Tank case,
18 and there may be some issues, I think Richard 19 pointed out, about whether it's the law or 20 not, but it basically says that it adopts the 21 control group test, which most courts have 22 said basically limits the scope of your 23 privilege to upper echelons of corporate 24 management.

25 Now, that decision is a minority view

1 among the states. Most states have followed 2 what the federal courts do, which is the 3 Upjohn case. Upjohn basically, also sometimes 4 called the subject matter test, deals with 5 basically, if it's in the scope of the 6 employ's duties and he consults with the 7 attorney, that is a privileged communication.

8 The federal courts apply Upjohn,
9 including the federal courts in this state.
10 Obviously, the problem we've got, especially 11 if you're in federal court and you've got 12 mixed claims here, you've got two different 13 tests on privilege.

14 If you're the lawyer representing a 15 company, you're not exactly sure with who,
16 other than probably the president, you can 17 safely communicate without worrying about 18 whether that matter can become a matter of 19 disclosure.

20 The subcommittee had made a 21 recommendation of a test that was somewhat in 22 between the control group and the Upjohn test,
23 which was based on a decision by the Eighth 24 Circuit in the Meredith case. I don't have a 25 cite on it, but it's in the materials.

1           And basically what the Meredith said was 2           that if the communication was at the direction 3           of a superior or upper-echelon management, you 4           may talk to this lawyer so that he may act and 5           advise us about the matter, then that would 6           covered. That is different than just the 7           broad Upjohn test, which is if the management 8           tells the lawyer to go talk to whoever they 9           want and there's a privilege that attaches.

10           So the recommendation by the Rules of 11           Evidence Committee which is before you 12           basically follows the Meredith line, which was 13           sort of a middle ground, I would say, but 14           which still recognizes the fact that most 15           corporations, when they secure legal advice,
16           don't do it through the president or the CEO
17           or the vice president. And it makes sense.

18           Some of the other materials in the memo 19           note that if an employee's actions were in 20           response to a superior, if the corporation can 21           be held liable for something that he does in 22           the course and scope of his employment or if 23           under the rules he makes a statement, a public 24           statement within the course and scope that is 25           an admission against the company, then

1 certainly the lawyer should be able to 2 communicate with that employee in connection
3 with the matter and feel that he has a
4 privilege with that communication.

5 So this rule tries to take that into 6 consideration. It does not go as broad and 7 the intent was not to go so broad as to simply 8 say any communication with any low level 9 employee of the company would be covered by 10 the privilege.

11 So it's a middle ground that tries to 12 recognize the reality of representing 13 companies, and that you don't usually deal
14 with the president or the CEO, so that's sort 15 of the history behind the rule. It was a 16 unanimous vote -- well, I think there may have 17 been one dissent out of the entire committee, 18 which included people from both sides of the 19 bar. So I don't think it's really, to me, a 20 plaintiffs versus defendants issue here.

21 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. If you
22 want to find those materials there in your 23 first supplement, it's Page 610 indicating 24 that this all begins with an inquiry from Dee 25 Kelly to then Lee Currington, I guess, the

1 chair, and it was followed up. Page 610.
2 It's about a 12-page or longer, 12 or 13-page 3 memorandum. But that's what we have been 4 addressing, Mark, is your very material.
5 That's what that is right here.

6 MR. SALES: I wasn't sure what 7 was in the packet.

8 MR. LOW: No. It's all been -- 9 your committee considered like three 10 different --

11 MR. SALES: -- versions.

12 MR. LOW: -- versions, yeah.
13 And I think they're all -- go ahead.

14 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Bill, why 15 don't you go ahead with your thoughts.

16 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Well, I
17 haven't read all of this material in the 18 supplement, and it may not make that much 19 difference, but it's my view that Meredith is 20 actually Upjohn, because Upjohn was a
21 directive from the corporate officer in charge 22 of the investigation, and that it is not 23 accurate, technically accurate to say that the 24 subject matter test is Upjohn. Upjohn is a 25 third approach.

1 MR. SALES: That's correct.

2 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: I would
3 also say that our current rule without this 4 change would in my view cover a situation
5 where a representative of the client -- if you 6 really did have somebody who was in the 7 control group who had a representative, they 8 would be able to talk to their lawyer or the 9 lawyer's representative, and that would be 10 privileged. Okay? And I realize some courts
11 might get that wrong, but if it is a situation
12 where you have a representative of the client
13 and someone who is acting for the president 14 who is the client, then I think that 15 representative could talk to the lawyer's 16 representative and that would be privileged,
17 recognizing that I may not be right that all 18 courts would reach that conclusion.

19 The problem I have with our current rule 20 is not so much with communications that come 21 upstream. I have a real problem with our 22 control group test if it requires the lower 23 level person to say what I told him. I don't 24 like that. Okay? I think somebody ought to 25 be able to be the recipient of legal advice

3

1 without having that legal advice subject to 2 disclosure. I'm less concerned about factual 3 information coming from somebody out in the 4 field being, you know, discoverable, because 5 frankly, that's the kind of stuff that ought 6 to be available. So I don't like the control
7 group test, but I don't like this draft 8 either.

9 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Richard,
10 we've heard from you. Let me hear from some 11 others. Mark, anything else from you?

12 MR. SALES: I just wanted to 13 point out one other thing on that Meredith 14 decision. That is also -- I think Bill is 15 correct that Upjohn does not technically 16 follow the subject matter test. It's more of 17 an ad hoc determination on what the employee 18 did and what were his responsibilities at the 19 time. So I think he's correct in that.

20 The other thing I was going to point out
21 is that Meredith is supported also by Judge
22 Weinstein in his treatise on evidence as well, 23 as supporting the use of this type of language
24 to take into consideration where the employee 25 is someone not the president or CEO of the 1 company. So it's not just Meredith. There

2 are a lot of other people out there.

3 And I want to point out that the control 4 group test is the minority view among the 5 states and certainly is not followed by any of 6 the federal courts.

7 CHAIRMAN SOULES: John Marks.

8 MR. MARKS: I just wanted to 9 respond a little bit to what Richard was 10 talking about about the rules of discovery and 11 whether this particular rule would collide
12 with the others. I don't think that think do 13 as I recall that rule, because the rule now 14 says that any fact is discoverable. And 15 regardless of where that fact may be, you're 16 entitled to get it. And this doesn't really 17 address that. It addresses legal advice and 18 consultation. So just because a lawyer took a 19 statement and there are facts in that 20 statement that would be discoverable, I don't 21 think it affects that at all.

22 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Paul Gold.

23 MR. GOLD: Well, I just wanted
24 to save my spot. I overcame all sorts of 25 things to get down here for this. I just want

1 to read this real quick, and then I'll speak.

2 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Alex

3 Albright.

4 PROFESSOR ALBRIGHT: I want to 5 talk about the interrelationship between the 6 attorney-client privilege and the work product 7 privilege. Everybody has been talking, and it 8 sounds almost as when people talk about the 9 attorney-client privilege and the control
10 group, people tend to say, "Well, then there 11 is no privilege for these discussions with 12 lower-echelon employees."

13 Well, that is not true. And when you 14 read National Tank vs. Brotherton, that's 15 exactly what happens in that case. Those 16 communications, when they're concerning 17 litigation matters, are not privileged under 18 the attorney-client privilege, but they are 19 privileged as work product, so the 20 attorney-client privilege gives absolute
21 protection to all of these communications
22 between the lawyer and the control group
23 person, or if we're rejecting the control 24 group person, with whomever is the 25 representative of the client.

1           That means that you cannot get a copy of 2 the memo or the statement that represents a 3 communication between an employee and the 4 lawyer. So if it's a completely factual
5 investigation in a litigation related matter,
6 you have an explosion like in National Tank, a 7 lawyer goes and gets statements from the 8 people on the floor who saw the explosion.
9 Under this test those would be attorney-client 10 privilege and they would not be subject to 11 discovery, even under our work product rule, 12 because what our rule says is "unless they are 13 protected by some other privilege," which 14 means that if they're protected by an 15 attorney-client privilege, you cannot get 16 those statements. So this is a very important 17 part of the work product privilege.

18           If we leave the attorney-client privilege 19 subject to the control group test, then those 20 statements would be protected under work 21 product or those communications would be 22 protected under work product, but under our 23 new work product rule, those statements would 24 be discoverable.

25           Any communications that contain strategy

1 under our work product rule are absolutely
2 protected. We make very clear in our work
3 product rule that strategy discussions are not 4 discoverable. And it doesn't matter whether 5 those discussions are with high-level
6 employees or low-level employees. They cannot 7 be discovered.

8 Only in situations of need and hardship 9 where those people are dead and you can't get 10 what they know anymore are the factual parts 11 of those communications discoverable. The 12 notes where there are only factual renditions 13 of what was said between the lawyer and the 14 low-level employee, not strategy. But in that 15 situation you've got to have a showing of need 16 and hardship, which I'm not sure there has 17 been any case in Texas that I've seen where 18 they've talked about need and hardship really, 19 so that's what we're talking about here.

20 In litigation situations you do have 21 protection for those communications, and it
22 seems to me that people here are more
23 concerned about the litigation situation
24 because we're all involved in litigation.

25 I think another thing which you really

1 have to be thinking about is what about the 2 nonlitigation situation where the corporate 3 type lawyer is giving advice to the 4 corporation, and I think in those situations 5 it is the control group that is getting legal 6 advice. A lawyer is not going to go talk to a 7 guy on the line about securities and 8 contracts, and that's the kind of advice that 9 is protected only by the attorney-client
10 privilege. In those situations the work
11 product privilege doesn't come into play.

12 Work product comes into play anytime
13 there is an anticipation of litigation. What 14 National Tank vs. Brotherton did is it moved 15 up the "in anticipation of litigation" so that 16 we can rely on work product, where there was a 17 period of time where we only had the 18 attorney-client privilege.

19 So the control group test I think was 20 overly restrictive then if we had a very 21 restrictive work product rule. But now our 22 work product rule has been broadened to where 23 in anticipation of litigation is at an earlier 24 point in time so that we don't need a broader 25 attorney-client privilege, which I think is

1           overly protected because I think it insulates 2           things that I think may need to be produced in 3           litigation situations.

4                   And I've talked to Steve Good and Guy 5           Wellborne about this rule also, and both of 6           them, they together wrote the original control 7           group rule, and they're very much favor of 8           leaving it with the control group because they 9           think that it's overly protective to make the 10          attorney-client privilege broader.

11                   Maybe they didn't write it; they told me
12          they wrote it.

13                           CHAIRMAN SOULES: Referring to 14          what, 503(a)(1)?

15                           PROFESSOR ALBRIGHT: The Rules
16          of Evidence, right.

17                           CHAIRMAN SOULES: And (a)(2), 18          the original ones?

19                           PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Yeah.

20                           CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Coming 21          on up the table then, Robert, did you have 22          your hand up?

23                           MR. MEADOWS: No, I'm fine.

24                           CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Judge
25          Brister.

1                   HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: Yeah,
2 I'm very much in favor of going to at least a 3 subject matter test and away from the control 4 group test.

5                   For instance, in the related but 6 different situation, which is basically who 7 can the lawyer for the other side talk to, if 8 the nurse that works in the doctor's office, 9 the driver who works for the company, the 10 family member of the plaintiff, you know, most 11 attorneys don't think of just picking up the 12 phone and chatting with these people
13 informally before, after and during the trial
14 because they see them as the opposing client
15 and it's at odds with the rules.

16                   And that National Tank case just seems 17 odd, that, "Well, we just decided they're not 18 the client." So does that mean it's all right 19 to just call up and chat with the driver the 20 day before he goes on the stand on your 21 trucking case, or call up and chat with the 22 gas buyer on a tank case for the other side?
23 No attorney-client privilege.

24                   Maybe that's what you want to do, and 25 maybe the world would be safer for all of us

1 if that's what happened, but that's not what 2 most people think of as ethical or not 3 ethical.

4 For instance, especially with lower level
5 people, one of the main functions of the trial 6 lawyer, because our training, our lives are 7 focused on the precise use of words, we use 8 worlds more precisely than everybody else in 9 the world does. That's why they think we're 10 nitpickers. And part of woodshedding a 11 witness is not getting them to lie but getting 12 them to be as precise in the use of their 13 words at trial that they won't get in trouble 14 by somebody from their view twisting or 15 somebody else construing what they said which 16 is not what they meant to say.

17 Now, the people that need that most are 18 the lower level employees, not the upper level 19 employees or the person who that's hiring the 20 lawyers, who is usually a lawyer themselves.
21 None of that discussion is protected. The 22 woodshedding of this bus driver, I don't see 23 how that's work product any more than 24 woodshedding, you know, a third-party witness, 25 and it's not under the control group test

1 protected by attorney-client. And it just 2 seems to me that that's what most everybody 3 thinks of as being privileged but is odds with 4 what the Court has construed this rule to be.

5 And I think we ought to at least go to 6 some subject matter or client/entity type 7 privilege definition.

8 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Buddy Low.

9 MR. LOW: First of all, as to 10 who a lawyer can talk to, Ethics Opinion 464 11 makes it pretty clear that you can't talk to 12 anybody for whose conduct the defendant may be 13 liable or responsible. Now, as to whether or 14 not they can talk to the driver, if I've got a 15 driver, I'm going to tell him "Don't talk to 16 anybody," I mean, whether he's going to or 17 not. But I think our system promotes being 18 able to talk to factual witnesses. If the 19 driver knows something, they can depose him, 20 so I think that's covered.

21 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: You're 22 talking about depositions. Depositions are 23 one thing. We're talking about picking up the 24 phone and chatting without the other attorney 25 being there.

1 MR. LOW: All right. How does 2 this rule protect that?

3 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: If it's 4 the client, it makes it clear you can't call 5 up the other side's client and chat with them.

6 MR. LOW: Well, I understand.
7 But why shouldn't you be able to talk to 8 somebody if they have factual knowledge? I 9 mean, you know, that's what we're going to.

10 CHAIRMAN SOULES: You mean even 11 the client? Even the adverse client?

12 MR. LOW: No, no, no. I'm not 13 talking about --

14 CHAIRMAN SOULES: See, that's 15 where you and Judge Brister are 16 miscommunicating.

17 MR. LOW: He's extending it to 18 that. I understand we're miscommunicating.
19 But my point is, if we mess with this, this 20 rule as drawn -- look, the basic thing is 21 pretty broad. It says "General Rule of 22 Privilege." Now, that's going to apply now to 23 a whole bunch of lower people. And that says, 24 "The client has a privilege to refuse to 25 disclose and to prevent any person from |

1 disclosing confidential communications."

2 Now, confidential communications are just 3 communications made not intended to be 4 related. Well, I mean that's everything. I
5 think in the rule what is protected is real 6 broad, and I think if we take it down to these 7 lower people that every communication -- I
8 tell you that this is 50 feet from here. I'm 9 out there investigating with you. That can't 10 be -- well, I didn't measure it.

11 I mean, I think there was a time when 12 they even claimed that pictures were a 13 communication. I mean, that was a big issue 14 and everything. I think basically that we're 15 getting away from trying to protect just 16 everything. I mean, even if I take a 17 statement or something. And my objection to 18 it was when you take and add lower level 19 people to this broad protection of any 20 communication. And who decides that it is not 21 to be communicated? The lawyer? Who? That 22 it goes too far. It prevents people from 23 getting facts. Now, that's my interpretation, 24 that it will be expanded. I know that's not 25 what's intended, and that's all.

1 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay.
2 Richard, do you have something you want to 3 add?

4 MR. ORSINGER: No, nothing.

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Rusty
6 McMains.

7 MR. McMAINS: Well, I agree
8 with Buddy. I believe that the rule as 9 expanded to lower level people overrides and 10 trumps the work product exceptions that we 11 have with regards to discovery for factual 12 information. This doesn't just protect 13 communications made by lawyers to these 14 individuals, it protects what people tell a 15 lawyer at any time, and not relating to any 16 transaction that's in litigation or related 17 anytime. All they have to do is they're just 18 to assert the attorney-client privilege, 19 they're my lawyer, and that just means that 20 they're looking for full employment for 21 lawyers for other services other than being 22 what they should be, which is lawyers. This 23 is an absolute protection.

24 And the way our privilege rules are drawn
25 they don't have to produce that material.

1 They don't even have to identify the 2 withholding of it if it's an attorney-client 3 under our rules. I mean, they don't have to 4 do any of the things with regards to 5 withholding statements if it's an 6 attorney-client statement until there are lots 7 of demands made on them.

8 So I find this to be a considerable 9 intrusion into the work product area and the 10 displacement of it, as Alex said. And that's 11 the real problem. We've already made some of 12 those policy choices, and this is a reversal 13 of it.

14 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Mark Sales.

15 MR. SALES: I just want to add,
16 first of all, it's not just anybody talking.
17 They have to be requested by the superior to 18 talk.

19 Secondly, this state is the one that's 20 not in line. Nationally, the test that's 21 being used is more along the subject matter 22 test. The federal courts in this state are 23 using that test. There is a big policy choice
24 here on uniformity. Corporations don't deal 25 solely in Texas. They are all over.

1           If somebody in Ohio has what they think 2 is a privileged communications and they're 3 sued in Texas, it may be privileged in Ohio
4 but it's not in Texas. There is a definite 5 need for some uniformity. Corporate, in-house 6 counsel and lawyers outside who deal with 7 companies know that. And it's very difficult 8 when we have a situation where you can only 9 talk to the upper-echelon people, which is 10 just not the reality of dealing with 11 companies. If you deal with them, if it's a 12 bank, if you deal with an officer, fine 13 maybe. But if you deal with some guy who is 14 running a branch office, is that protected?
15 Who knows.

16           And I'm not talking about the situation 17 where we're in litigation. It could be 18 putting together a deal. It could be 19 discussing the risks of an employment benefits 20 plan with some low-level guy. It doesn't have 21 to be -- and the focus here, I think, is true, 22 since we're all litigators here; we're 23 thinking of risk management and investigation 24 or whatever. But most companies, despite what 25 we think, are dealing with lawyers day-to-day

1 on matters that don't involve litigation
2 whatsoever. The question is, do those people
3 and do those lawyers have some protected 4 communication there? Can they advise their 5 client safely knowing that that's not going to 6 come to the light of day because a lawsuit
7 shows up five or 10 years down the road.

8 So I think there's a question here about 9 uniformity, national uniformity, what the 10 federal courts are doing and what most other 11 states in this country do. And this rule does 12 not go as broad as what I think is being 13 read. It's certainly not intended to be that 14 broad. But it still gives reasonable 15 protection to the attorney knowing that he can 16 advise a client without that communication 17 being disclosed.

18 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Steve 19 Yelenosky.

20 MR. YELENOSKY: I just want to 21 go back to Judge Brister's comments, because I 22 think Judge Brister focused on two different 23 issues.

24 One is the attorney-client privilege and 25 the definition of who the client is for

1 purposes of promoting the public policy of 2 unfettered communication between a client and 3 an attorney, both ways, and that wouldn't 4 include just factual information but it might 5 include opinions from the client to the 6 attorney, and of course, the attorney's 7 opinion backwards.

8           The different thing he focused on was the 9 prohibition on contact from an adverse
10 attorney to the client. And what Judge 11 Brister was talking about was the need to 12 protect an adverse attorney from essentially 13 woodshedding the adverse client. And I don't 14 think that that gives -- the rationale for the 15 prohibition on contact between an attorney and 16 an adverse party really focuses around in my 17 mind on preventing an adverse attorney from 18 coming up with some kind of arrangement or 19 deal with a client who has authority to make a 20 decision. It's not there to protect an 21 attorney from getting the facts from that 22 adverse client that they might in a deposition 23 or from trying to turn around or twist what 24 that client has to say, which is what the 25 attorney will always do in depositions or

1 trial anyway. And granted, the 2 representative's attorney won't be there to 3 protect him or her, but I don't think that 4 that's the purpose of the rule, to prevent an 5 attorney from talking to an adverse client who 6 has factual witnesses, factual information or 7 a representative or employee or lower level
8 employee who has factual information.

9 And so I don't think you can decide
10 whether or not the attorney-client privilege 11 ought to extend all the way down by being 12 concerned about what an employee might say to 13 an adverse attorney. Moreover, as a practical 14 matter, I think as some people said, most 15 people are going to be told not to talk to the 16 adverse attorney.

17 So I think that as Alex pointed out, I 18 think the work product rule should govern for 19 lower level employees' information, not an 20 absolute privilege like the attorney-client
21 privilege.

22 And as far as any disparity with other 23 states, I don't know if that's really true or 24 not. I think Paul may have something to say
25 about that. But if there is any disparity, I

1 doubt the disparity in our Evidence Rules is 2 the biggest disparity or of most concern to 3 corporations in interstate law disparities. I 4 imagine it doesn't even register on their 5 charts.

6 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Paul Gold.

7 MR. GOLD: I can't even believe
8 we're addressing this. The last time --

9 CHAIRMAN SOULES: We're
10 addressing because someone from the State Bar 11 of Texas sent it to this committee to be 12 studied, Paul, and we always address those 13 matters fully and completely, because that's 14 our job.

15 MR. GOLD: Well, then as part
16 of that job -- and I dropped a bunch of stuff 17 to come down here to talk about it. I think 18 that it is incredible that at the last meeting
19 we voted down the self-critical analysis 20 privilege by a vote of something like 21 to 21 three. And a lot of discussion was held about 22 why that was such an egregious proposal.

23 This is worse, because all this is is a 24 self-critical analysis with no exemption.
25 What this would do is essentially with regard

1 to any discussion that a corporation wanted to 2 protect, all they would have to do is get the 3 in-house attorney to ask the questions or have 4 an upper echelon individual request the 5 employees to talk to the attorney. And to 6 think or to suggest that corporations do not 7 have this evil motive I think is to be in 8 nah-nah land.

9 If you look at Ford Motor Company vs.
10 Leggitt, which completely obliterates the 11 argument about uniformity, the Ford Motor 12 Company specifically did not make the claim of 13 party communication. It talks about that in 14 footnote 5. And the reason that Ford Motor 15 Company doesn't is because Ford Motor Company
16 has figured out that in the State of Texas
17 that if they make a claim for party 18 communications, there may be an exemption for 19 undue hardship and substantial need. So they 20 specifically couched their affidavits solely 21 in terms of attorney-client privilege.

22 This Supreme Court, when confronted once 23 again with Ford Motor Company making the 24 argument that they needed uniformity with 25 their argument with regard to the privilege,

1 adopted for the first time a substantial,
2 significant contacts analysis on conflict of 3 laws with regard to attorney-client privilege, 4 holding that with regard to attorney-client 5 privilege that you look to the state of the 6 entity raising the privilege and see what that 7 law holds. And they specifically held that 8 Michigan's law on attorney-client privilege 9 trumped Texas' in Leggitt vs. Ford. There is 10 no problem with uniformity. That issue was 11 dealt with by the Texas Supreme Court
12 conclusively in Leggitt.

13 But this issue -- I'm sorry, Brotherton
14 was decided in 1993. We're not talking about 15 a case that was written by Justice Kilgarlin.
16 We're talking about a case that was authored 17 by the Chief Justice, Justice Phillips. And 18 they point out in 1993 that the control group 19 test has historically been adopted by the 20 majority of the federal courts.

21 And then if you look at the annotation by 22 Black that the Supreme Court cites in Leggitt, 23 the annotation points out that Upjohn has 24 created more confusion in the federal courts 25 than any other case and that the confusion is

1 that Upjohn, while rejecting the control group 2 test, didn't put anything in its place. And 3 then they go on to cite in incredibly lengthy 4 annotation that there's absolutely no
5 uniformity in the federal courts or in the 6 state courts with regard to this.

7 So to suggest that the control group test 8 is the minority and this rule that's being 9 proposed is the trend I think is misleading.
10 I do not think that.

11 And besides, we have a whole body of law 12 in this state, as Alex points out, that's 13 based upon party communications, attorney work 14 product and attorney-client privilege that 15 none of these other states have. And what we 16 will do is completely extinguish the party
17 communications exception. And in Texas it 18 protects communications between attorneys, 19 between parties, between employees for the 20 pending litigation, and the only way that you 21 can get it is through undue hardship and 22 substantial need.

23 If you adopt this rule, as the Supreme 24 Court has pointed out in the trilogy of cases 25 that they just wrote on with regard to

1 hospital committee privilege, you will never 2 get it. What this is essentially doing is 3 burying, once and for all, all discussion, all 4 evidence, all fact witnesses. And for those 5 who think that it doesn't include fact 6 witnesses, all you have to do is look at 7 Leggitt where what was protected as 8 attorney-client privilege was Failure
9 Analysis' inspections because an attorney, an 10 in-house attorney requested it.

11 All it does is make the in-house attorney 12 the virus. All the in-house attorney has to 13 do is touch somebody or talk to somebody and 14 it's going to become privileged. All we are 15 doing here, if we adopt this, is adopt what we 16 rejected so vehemently at the last meeting.

17 With regard to Judge Brister's argument
18 about the driver, that's a different issue.
19 What we're talking about, and when you read 20 the annotation, what this rule is, it's who 21 personifies the corporation, it's not how many 22 people can you go out and employ and take off 23 the street.

24 It's anomalous that we should be talking 25 about efficiency in discovery and cutting the 1 number of depositions, the number of 2 interrogatories you can send and whatever at 3 the same time that you'll be completely

4 eliminating the ability to do informal
5 discovery. Anybody that you potentially talk
6 to may be a violation of the canons of ethics; 7 whereas now you know at least if you talk with 8 a director or a manager or a supervisor, you 9 know that that's an individual who may be in a 10 control group. If you even so much as talk to 11 the cleaning people now, who are employees of 12 the corporation, if somebody has had the 13 wherewithal to just say, "Well, all of you up 14 and down the line go talk to the in-house 15 attorney about what you saw or what you may 16 have heard," you may be violating a canon of 17 ethics.

18 I disagree with Judge Brister that the 19 rule is supposed to protect the driver and 20 everyone else. It's only supposed to protect 21 those who can bind the corporation. And Texas 22 has Rules of Evidence that before someone can 23 bind a corporation certain things have to be 24 proven.

25 I'm sorry, I'm being too passionate about

1 this, and I apologize to the Chair for asking
2 why we're here. I know why we're here, and I
3 know it's an important topic. I just don't 4 think anything has happened since Brotherton.
5 I don't think anything has happened since this 6 Court adopted the control group test. I don't 7 think anything has happened that warrants 8 making a wholesale change in our code of 9 privileges when it's already protected. I
10 just don't see it. And that's why I think 11 everybody should vote against this just as 12 aggressively as they did against the 13 self-critical analysis.

14 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Judge
15 Peeples.

16 HON. DAVID PEEPLES: The 17 statement was made awhile back by Buddy that 18 this rule would keep people from getting the 19 facts. I want to be sure that I understand.
20 This would simply prevent discovery of lawyer 21 statements and conversations as communications 22 between lower level employees, and we that 23 have right now. You can always depose people 24 and call them adverse. And if they tell the 25 truth, you know, whatever they told the lawyer

1 two years ago presumably they will tell it
2 again. I'm just wondering if the opposition
3 to this rests on the premise that there's 4 going to be widespread perjury by low level 5 employees.

6 MR. LOW: That's just one of 7 the -- that's just --

8 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Buddy Low.

9 MR. LOW: No, I'm sorry.

10 HON. DAVID PEEPLES: The low 11 level employees that have had these 12 conversations with lawyers can be deposed and 13 questioned about everything. You just can't 14 say, "What did you and the lawyer or the 15 lawyer's representative talk about?"

16 MR. LOW: Let me tell you what,
17 if you ever represent somebody that gets hurt 18 on the railroad, you face all kinds of 19 obstacles. Everything is confidential. And 20 if you put this in there, they're going to -- 21 measurements and all that, "Well, he told me 22 that. I can't say. He told me that." That's 23 intended to be. Well, the rule is not 24 intending to cover that. I'm not saying 25 that. But you're going to have hearing after

1 hearing on these things. That was just one of 2 the reasons.

3 The second -- but let me go back to a 4 point. I understand what Judge Brister is 5 talking about, but I think the place to 6 correct that is in our Canons of Ethics and 7 not here, because our canons say you can't 8 communicate with a person represented by a 9 lawyer. And maybe we need to do that. But I
10 don't think we need to take a Rule of Evidence 11 to deal with a canon of ethics.

12 HON. DAVID PEEPLES: Just to 13 follow up on that, Luke. A foreman talks with 14 a lawyer or a lawyer's representative but it's 15 before litigation is anticipated, let's say, 16 before that can be proven to a judge. You can 17 still depose the foreman and find out what he 18 knows in his personal knowledge, can't you?
19 Surely, you can. You just can't say, "What 20 did you and the lawyer talk about?" I mean, 21 that's going to be hard to get at. I mean, am 22 I wrong about that?

23 MR. LOW: No. But what they're 24 going to say, the way they do that, they say, 25 "Okay. How far was it from here?"

1 "Well, I don't know. The lawyer told me
2 that distance. He looked at it."

3 I mean, you just don't understand. Just 4 sue a railroad one time.

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay.
6 Elaine, and we'll go down the table.

7 PROFESSOR CARLSON: I just want
8 to to follow-up with what Paul was saying
9 about the Ford Motor vs. Leggitt decision. I 10 have served as a discovery master in several 11 cases where conflict of law assertions on 12 attorney-client privilege have been invoked.
13 And I concur a thousand percent with Paul's 14 description that certainly the federal 15 standard that's used in Upjohn is not 16 consistent. There's a reason it's called "ad 17 hoc." It is very unpredictable in its 18 application.

19 Insofar as applying other state's 20 privileges, those states that have used a more 21 generous standard, my experience has been that 22 there is much more protection for the 23 communication for the corporation, and it is 24 very problematic. And I would agree with Alex 25 that the work-product privilege that we have

1 goes a long way in protecting the lower level 2 employee communications. I also agree with 3 Bill about attorney communications to the 4 lower level employees. At least we need to 5 clarify in some way that there is that 6 protection in our rule.

8 Orsinger.

9 MR. ORSINGER: I think after 10 the conversation I've become convinced that 11 this basically permits people, if they wish, 12 to use a lawyer to circumvent our work product 13 doctrine that we worked out and voted and have 14 already adopted. Because all you have to do 15 is to pass a memo out to everyone in your 16 organization to answer whatever questions the 17 lawyer may have and then put the lawyer in 18 charge of it and then the work product 19 standard is completely gone, and it's 20 completely preempted by the attorney-client 21 privilege. And this tool is going to be 22 used. I mean, it's probably designed to be 23 used this way, and it will be used this way, 24 and I think it really is contrary to the 25 position that the Committee has taken in its 1 earlier vote on the discovery rule.

2 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Rusty.

3 MR. McMAINS: Well, we made a
4 specific decision along that same line that 5 witness statements should be producible,
6 should be discoverable. And if a witness
7 statement was taken by a lawyer and this rule 8 was changed in this fashion and the only thing 9 that the president does, or whoever you want
10 to call the control entity, is send out memos
11 saying "Talk to the lawyer," sends out a 12 general memo, "Talk to the lawyer," those 13 witness statements are protected specifically 14 under this rules. Those communications cannot 15 be made.

16 And the idea that you're going to get to 17 talk to somebody two years down the road when 18 they finally disclose him to you and that 19 that's going to substitute for having a 20 statement that he made right after the event 21 and be able to look at, that is basically 22 nonreality in the litigation game.

23 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Anyone else
24 down this side of the table? Mark Sales.

25 MR. SALES: I think the

1 committee ought to get away from thinking 2 about the litigation context a minute and 3 think about the privilege in connection with 4 the day-to-day workings of the company. Let's 5 say it's an SEC filing. Let's say it's 6 dealing with an employee benefit plan. There 7 are a multitude of things. And most legal 8 advice, when you're dealing with companies, 9 and that's why most firms have corporate 10 departments and tax departments, there is a 11 multitude of advice that goes into day-to-day 12 operations of a company that have nothing to 13 do with litigation.

14 And the question is, if I go talk to a 15 branch manager at some bank about some 16 statement regarding an SEC filing or a UCC
17 filing, is that statement -- is my discussion 18 with him to be disclosed or is that 19 privileged? Now, if this employee said, "The 20 lawyer is coming down to talk to you about 21 that," is this going to be something 22 privileged or not?

23 And I think the focus is too hard on the 24 issue about work product. And the concern I 25 think most companies have that do business

1 here is what about the day-to-day stuff? What 2 about those things? And I don't see any 3 protection in this rule that helps you on 4 those types of issues, and that's what the 5 normal day-to-day business of these companies 6 is, not litigation. And so I don't think this 7 rule has any protection for that, and I think 8 that's the concern here.

9 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Are you
10 suggesting we consider adopting this rule only 11 for nonlitigation matters?

12 MR. SALES: Well, I think the 13 focus of this committee was not to even deal 14 with the issue of work product and 15 litigation. The focus of the committee, and 16 it's in the materials, you can see where 17 they've written in there, we are not trying to 18 address or discuss this in the context of 19 litigation or work product. We're talking 20 about what happens day-to-day outside of that 21 context, no litigation is anticipated, and if 22 a lawyer is going to talk to a branch manager 23 at a bank or going to talk with some head of a 24 plant or facility about whether, you know, 25 this complies with the ADA or whatever it is,

1 is that communication going to be privileged 2 or not. And I think that's where we break off 3 with the control group test from what most 4 other states and the federal courts are doing.

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: John Marks.

6 MR. MARKS: I think Mark made a
7 very important point. And we've been looking 8 at this from the standpoint of litigation, and 9 of course, the Rules of Evidence so far as 10 they deal with lawyer/client privilege are 11 much broader than that. And I certainly want 12 to echo what he says. I think that's the 13 point. They need that kind of protection.
14 And for people to sit around here and say that 15 corporations don't need to talk with lawyers 16 and lawyers don't need to talk with the 17 corporate people and the securities people or 18 whatever in the corporate context is just 19 ridiculous and really not reality.

20 And a lot of times people will be talking 21 to lower-echelon folks before they even know 22 that a case is going to come down the pike. I
23 mean, they may be seeking legal advice. I 24 think (B) even talks about "in connection with 25 securing legal advice by the entity."

1           So I think the rule as proposed takes 2 care of the situation that Paul was talking
3 about and what they're talking about around 4 this room.

5           If I go out and get a statement from an 6 employee as a lawyer and that person signs
7 that statement, that becomes his statement. I
8 don't see how under the rule as it has now 9 been drafted by the Advisory Committee and 10 sent to the Supreme Court would keep -- how we 11 could keep that from being produced simply 12 because the lawyer asked for the statement if 13 the guy signs it and adopts it and makes it 14 his own?

15                   PROFESSOR ALBRIGHT: John, can 16 I answer that really quickly?

17                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: Alex
18 Albright. Speak up, please.

19                   PROFESSOR ALBRIGHT: I think 20 our rule, the work product rule, says that 21 that statement is discoverable unless 22 protected by another privilege; that a
23 statement given to a lawyer would be a 24 communication protected by the attorney-client 25 privilege under here. The only way you could

1 get out of that is somehow except statements
2 in this Rule 503.

3 MR. MARKS: Well, does it? I
4 don't know that it does. Because it says here 5 in the proposed rule that is protected, if the 6 communication is for the purpose of securing 7 legal advice by the entity. Now, a lawyer
8 going out and taking a statement to preserve 9 evidence is not in my view securing legal 10 advice by an entity, is he?

11 ALEX ALBRIGHT: Well, I think 12 most people would claim it would be.

13 MR. MARKS: Well, of course
14 they would claim it, but I don't know what the 15 cases about that. Most lawyers, I suspect, 16 would try every way in the world to protect 17 that, but that doesn't necessarily mean that 18 we shouldn't try to make a rule, because 19 that's something that the court is going to 20 have to deal with ultimately anyway as the 21 interpretation.

22 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Rusty, do you
23 have the language?

24 MR. McMains: Well, the General
25 Rule of Privilege does not say that. It says,

1 "A client has a privilege to refuse to 2 disclose and to prevent any other person from 3 disclosing confidential communications," which 4 are defined as simply not to be disclosed to 5 third parties, "made for the purpose of 6 facilitating the rendition of professional 7 legal services to the client."

8 That has nothing to do with rendition of 9 legal advice or anything. It has to do with 10 defending the son of a bitch. So that's a 11 misstatement and a misnomer to suggest that it 12 isn't that broad. It is that broad. It
13 trumps the work product privilege. It undoes
14 everything we have done otherwise and is a 15 disaster.

16 The suggestion is that we should do it in 17 nonlitigation matters. Then let them draw a 18 rule that says, "In cases that don't involve 19 litigation." Let them do a rule which says 20 basically that the work product stuff trumps
21 this insofar as attorney-client privilege.
22 We've considered that. But that's not what 23 it's for. It's for a number of reasons, and 24 it's the so-called unintended consequences
25 that I think warrant the rejection of it.

1 MR. MARKS: Well, we could 2 address the unintended consequences then,
3 because I think the idea is a good idea, and 4 that is to protect the communications with 5 lower-echelon people who have a need to obtain 6 legal advice from lawyers in behalf of their 7 company. Right now they can't do that, so 8 maybe we ought to address those things.

9 CHAIRMAN SOULES: It seems to 10 me that there may be a division over this rule 11 because there's not enough focus on all the 12 other privileges that we have. The party 13 communications privilege, so-called in the 14 rule, has also been interchangeably described 15 as the investigative privilege, which is the 16 privilege pursuant to which lawyers and 17 anybody representative of the client is going 18 to go and investigate fully all of the 19 circumstances and have all sorts of 20 communications. And those communications can 21 only be penetrated for good cause and undue
22 hardship. We don't have to shroud everything 23 under attorney-client in order to protect it.
24 Why don't these other privileges -- it's 25 just not correct to say that communications

1 with lower level employees are not protected.
2 They are. They're protected under 3 investigative or party communication 4 privileges, but they have some -- there are 5 windows you can get through too.

6 MR. MARKS: But that's in the 7 context, Luke, of litigation. I mean, we 8 start talking about communications that take 9 place long before any litigation.

10 CHAIRMAN SOULES: I haven't 11 heard anybody make a motion that this be 12 restricted altogether to nonlitigation
13 matters.

14 MR. MARKS: Well, it becomes a
15 litigated matter when -- that's the only time 16 it's important, is when somebody gets sued or 17 sues somebody.

18 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, of 19 course.

20 MR. MARKS: And if that's the 21 case, then all of these work product and party 22 communication privileges don't apply, because 23 those are in the context of anticipating 24 litigation or in litigation. That's what 25 Mark's point is.

1                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Let's
2 hear from Paul Gold and then Robert Meadows.

3                   MR. GOLD: I want to 4 reemphasize the insidiousness of the problem
5 in terms of the self-critical analysis
6 privilege in terms of what you're saying.
7 What would happen is any time, even if there 8 weren't any litigation pending, if there were 9 discussions in terms of self-critical
10 analysis, if employees talked to the in-house
11 attorney and gave statements or the attorney 12 took a statement where somebody up above asked 13 the employees to give statements about what 14 they thought about the design of a particular 15 component of a Ford truck or a gas tank or 16 whatever before someone had filed a lawsuit, 17 then under this rule, once a lawsuit were 18 filed, all of those statements would become 19 privileged. There would never be any 20 exemption to obtaining them. That's exactly 21 the point.

22                   What you're trying to do, or what 23 unwittingly is happening, is you are 24 obliterating the party communication privilege 25 that we have and replacing it with something

1 that, even if it's not the intent, will 2 effectively bury all of the evidence that is 3 communicated at the time that it was all 4 happening, to be replaced only with testimony
5 later on that will be coached by attorneys, 6 after woodshedding by attorneys and what have 7 you. I just think it's a wrong result.

8 And in response to those that say, "Well, 9 there are innocent activities conducted by our 10 corporations," I refer you to Steenbergen vs.
11 Ford in which Justice Enoch, when he was on 12 the Dallas Court of Appeals, held that when 13 the plaintiff made the argument that only 14 documents that aren't made in the ordinary 15 course of business are protected, observe that 16 it is the business of Ford Motor Company to 17 prepare for litigation. All corporations 18 prepare for litigation.

19 To suggest that activities are undertaken 20 by in-house attorneys with an eye for what 21 will happen in litigation at some point, if it 22 arises, I think is not evil. And I think that 23 if there are problems with the current rule, 24 the problems that are created by this rule are 25 far worse. And if there are benefits that are

1 squelched by the present rule, they are 2 minimal compared to the harm that will be 3 created by the requested change.

4 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Let's
5 make one more pass around the table and then 6 we'll get to a vote on this. Robert Meadows.

7 MR. MEADOWS: The point I'm 8 concerned about is the point that Mark made,
9 which is, you've got a need in a corporation
10 or business for legal advice.

11 Let's take the ARISA example, that a 12 lawyer working with a company on an ARISA plan 13 is dealing with lower-echelon employees or 14 representatives of the company. And those 15 discussions are held. Advice is given.
16 Comments are made. Alternatives are 17 considered. The plan is put into effect.
18 Several years later there's litigation over 19 that very plan. What privilege protects the 20 communications between the lawyer working with 21 the company to develop the plan and the 22 employee who was involved with the lawyer in 23 that context?

24 No statement is taken, so this problem
25 about the statement that keeps getting

1 injected gets pushed aside. We deal with that 2 in other places anyway.

3 We've got a situation work where a lawyer
4 is working with a company, dealing with people 5 throughout the company up and down, and then 6 the subject matter becomes a matter of 7 litigation. What privilege protects those 8 communications and that advice? It's not 9 going to be a work product privilege.

10 PROFESSOR ALBRIGHT: Well, is 11 the lawyer really going to be talking with 12 lower-echelon employees when he's putting 13 together an ARISA plan? I mean, is he going 14 to be giving legal advice to the lower 15 levels?

16 MR. SALES: You've got 17 actuarials. You're going to be dealing with 18 banks on investments. There are all kinds of 19 things that go into a plan. You're never 20 going to be dealing, except when the plan is 21 approved, with the upper-echelon people.

22 In the typical plan you have actuarials.
23 You're going to have all kinds of people who 24 are figuring out how they're going to invest 25 it. Do we have an in-house program we want to 1 talk to? What's the interest rate going to 2 be? Is this plan funded within the ARISA

3 provisions? Is it too low, too high?

4 PROFESSOR ALBRIGHT: Why should 5 that be privileged?

6 MR. SALES: Because you're 7 advising whether that plan is acceptable and 8 meets ARISA or not. Do you have an ARISA 9 violation or not? You're securing legal 10 advice.

11 PROFESSOR ALBRIGHT: Well, the 12 advice is clearly privileged. The advice that 13 you're giving to the corporate executives is 14 privileged.

15 MR. MARKS: Not to the 16 lower-echelon people.

17 MR. YELENOSKY: Why would you
18 be advising lower-echelon people? They don't 19 have any ability to --

20 CHAIRMAN SOULES: One at a
21 time. We can't get a record here.

22 MR. YELENOSKY: Why would you
23 give that advice to lower-echelon employees, 24 that this doesn't comport with ARISA? You 25 give that advice to the executives who can

1 make that decision.

2 CHAIRMAN SOULES: And anyway,
3 is it confidential? Is it rendered for 4 purposes -- if you're advising somebody how to 5 set up an ARISA plan, is that confidential
6 legal advice?

7 MR. MARKS: If it's privileged,
8 it is. But if it's in litigation --

9 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: Let me
10 change it a little bit.

12 Brister.

13 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: Like in 14 Upjohn, a company gets concerned that some of 15 our foreign salespeople are bribing folks
16 around the world, so they hire a lawyer. Now, 17 we don't have any objective signs of 18 litigation so there's no work product, no
19 investigative privilege. He goes and asks 20 people, "Are you bribing folks here?" The 21 lawyer comes in to the lower level and says, 22 "Are you bribing people here?" Then when 23 litigation comes around, skip any depositions, 24 just call the lawyer. "What did the people 25 tell you in this country, that country and

1           that country?"

2                   Now, our criminal defense attorney 3           brothers and sisters go to jail rather than 4           disclose those kind of things because they 5           feel that is their professional duty as an 6           attorney, to protect those kind of things.
7           And this rule says save your money on 8           depositions, just depose the attorney. He'll 9           tell you everything, as long as he doesn't 10          make the mistake of writing it down so it's 11          work product, just ask him everything 12          everybody told you.

13                   I see more clearly than you the things
14          that are cloaked by attorney-client privilege 15          because I look at in camera documents. I've 16          had a half dozen times some of my newer 17          colleagues, not that I've been around so long, 18          call me up and say, "Brister, what do I do on 19          this? I've got a guy on the stand who is 20          saying one thing and I've looked at the in 21          camera documents and from what he told us, he 22          is lying. What's the exception?"

23                   There is no exception. That's what it 24          protects.

25                                   PROFESSOR DORSANEO: No, that's 1 a crime, fraud, Judge.

2 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: No. If 3 he's willing -- if the deal is there's an 4 exception to attorney-client privilege because 5 you think they're committing perjury because 6 they're saying something different, then 7 there's no attorney-client privilege, because 8 everybody is going to allege that. I'll say,
9 "Let me look at it and make sure he's not."

10 I mean, the whole reason we protect it is 11 so people go to their attorneys, they tell 12 them the whole truth without the fear that it 13 may be used against them. Now, there are good 14 reasons from my point of view to say forgot 15 that. We don't give that to doctors when they 16 get sued. We don't give that to accountants 17 and lots of other people. But we've got 18 several hundred years that say when you talk 19 to the attorney you should be at ease. You 20 shouldn't be guessing whether what you say is 21 ging to appear on the front page of the paper 22 or not, because it's an attorney. And it's 23 probably in the law a more protected thing
24 than talking to the priest. You should feel 25 comfortable in saying everything and baring

1 your heart telling all the facts, because this 2 guy or gal is on your side. This is an 3 attorney.

4 Now, that may be a bad idea, but that's 5 the way it's been for hundreds of years, and 6 that is what these lower-echelon people think 7 when they're talking to the attorney. If you 8 want to throw it out, that's fine, but 9 understand it's not just -- I understand there 10 are going to be some bad things that you just 11 can't get sometimes, but that's because we 12 value something.

13 It's like all evidence rules. All 14 evidence rules exclude something that might be 15 very valuable, very useful, very telling at 16 trial, but because of several hundred years of 17 experience we've decided that the whole thing
18 is privileged because there's a different
19 public policy, and the fact that it may help 20 you in your case ain't good enough.

21 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Buddy Low.

22 MR. LOW: But allowing a man to 23 lie on the stand when the lawyer knows it's a 24 lie and everybody, I just don't want any kind 25 of rule that would protect that. That would

1 be like saying I can go to my priest and just 2 confess everything to my lawyer and I've told 3 him now. I think that goes way too far.

4 MR. MARKS: Well, if the lawyer
5 doesn't disclose the lie, isn't that 6 supporting perjury or something like that?

7 MR. LOW: I understand.

8 MR. MARKS: I mean, doesn't he 9 commit a criminal act?

10 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Let's
11 get around the table and get this rule voted 12 on. Anybody else on this side? Paul, 13 anything you need to add new?

14 MR. GOLD: Yeah, because it's 15 something that no one has talked about and I 16 just thought about it. The only way that you 17 can impute gross negligence to a corporation 18 is through a vice-principal, if you stop and 19 think about it. It has to be a manager. It 20 has to be a supervisor. It has to be a 21 director. The only way that an admission can 22 bind an employer, the rule sets out, it has to 23 be in the course and scope and the person has 24 to be put in a position to be able to impute 25 that statement against the corporation, just

1 not any employee.

2 When we go changing these rules, it's the 3 law of unintended consequences. You just 4 don't change this, you change a whole body of 5 things. Why should you have a vice-principal 6 in gross negligence to bind a corporation if 7 you're going to say that any employee is a 8 representative of the corporation. Then any 9 employee should be able to bind the 10 corporation with regard to gross negligence.
11 Why should there be a difference?

12 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Anything new 13 on this side of the table here on but Buddy 14 Low's side of the table? Anything new at the 15 head of the table? Okay. Anything new on the 16 right side? Down at the end? John Marks, 17 your last words.

18 MR. MARKS: I would just like 19 to make one request in voting on this. I 20 would like to ask that you do two things.
21 First of all, should we change the rule; and 22 then two, should this be the way we change
23 it. Because I would like to get a sense 24 around the room as to whether or not people in 25 principle agree with some protection in the 1 area that we're talking about, as opposed to 2 just not liking this rule.

3 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. The 4 committee has recommended that there be no
5 change to Rule 503. It doesn't need a
6 second. Those in favor of the committee's --

7 MR. MARKS: Excuse me, no, the 8 committee didn't.

9 MR. LOW: It was two to two 10 tied.

11 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Then 12 we need a motion. We've already discussed it, 13 though.

14 MR. LOW: Well, I would move
15 that we make no change.

16 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Is there a 17 second?

18 MR. HUNT: Second.

19 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Don Hunt
20 seconded it.

21 MR. GOLD: What was it?

22 CHAIRMAN SOULES: No change.

23 MR. LOW: Where is Rusty?

24 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: I'm 25 authorized to vote for him.

1                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Those 2 who agree, no change to 503, show by hands.
3 Eight.

4                   Those who would change 503 show by 5 hands. Seven.

6                   Okay. Eight to seven no change. Any 7 further motions?

8                   Okay. Next, Buddy.

9                   MR. LOW: Okay. Let me see if 10 I can get back on track. 504, Criminal Rule.
11 Remember, Justice Clinton advised us a couple 12 of meetings before of 38.10 in the Code of 13 Criminal Procedure. We wanted to be 14 consistent with that, and we've drawn the rule 15 consistent with that exactly following that 16 same language that you'll see attached. Do 17 you see it, Judge? And we followed that 18 precisely so you can see what we did there.
19 And I'm open to questions about it.

20                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. The 21 committee's materials start with a copy of 22 Rule 504, Husband-Wife Privileges, followed by 23 a copy of Statute 38.10, followed by a 24 proposed rule change under the exceptions,
25 which would be under 504(b), Exceptions.

1 MR. LOW: Right.

2 CHAIRMAN SOULES: And would 3 this take the place of (1) and (2), current 4 (1) and (2)?

5 MR. LOW: No.

6 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Or is this a
7 third one?

8 MR. LOW: No. This would be -- 9 I mean, we're only dealing with the 10 exceptions. And you can see the way the 11 redlined version shows the way it -- it shows 12 (b), Exceptions. I put it on both, the (a) 13 and (b). We're only dealing with (b). And 14 you can see what we've done. It just adds to 15 the second "as to matters occurring prior to 16 the marriage," which was already there.

17 CHAIRMAN SOULES: It's 18 504(2)(b)?

19 MR. LOW: Right.

20 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Is what we're 21 changing?

22 MR. LOW: Right.

23 CHAIRMAN SOULES: And that is 24 to make it conform textually to 38.10.

25 MR. LOW: Right.

1 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Does it
2 differ from 38.10 in any way?

3 MR. LOW: No, not in the way
4 we've drawn it.

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Any 6 opposition to this change? No opposition to 7 this change. It's passed unanimously.

8 MR. LOW: Does that look okay
9 to you, Justice Clinton?

10 HON. SAM HOUSTON CLINTON:
11 Yeah. We've been over this half a dozen 12 times, I think. And the Legislature has 13 already spoken, so you really don't have much 14 choice.

15 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. That 16 will be done.

17 MR. LOW: All right.

18 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Thank you,
19 Judge Clinton.

20 MR. LOW: Now, next is a new 21 rule, 1009 Civil and Criminal. Mark's 22 committee made a draft of the new rule. At 23 the last meeting we made some changes. The 24 subcommittee met, and our subcommittee has 25 made -- we implemented the changes that you

1 suggested, and we have made some changes.

2 Basically the change we made is to make 3 it flexible so that it doesn't have to be as a 4 matter of law for the court to decide or it 5 doesn't have to be a matter of fact for the 6 jury to decide. It makes it flexible, so
7 we're not really dealing with a red-line 8 version of anything.

9 CHAIRMAN SOULES: All right.
10 Step us through the process of new Rule 1009.
11 This is a brand-new rule, right, 1009?

12 MR. LOW: Right. And it
13 pertains to translation of foreign records.
14 And basically you get into a situation, and we 15 discussed this, you might get into situations 16 like, say, in the Honda cases. There's the 17 Japanese version of the Honda and their 18 booklet and the warnings they give. And your 19 translator may say the Japanese call this 20 the "Wild Thing" or something like that and 21 your translator doesn't say that.

22 Well, we've tried to draw the rule
23 flexible so that the judge just doesn't say 24 okay. But if the judge wants to and he feels 25 comfortable, he may just say, "Okay. This is

1 the version." Or if the judge wants to, he 2 can let you put your translator up and say,
3 "This is what it means," and the other 4 translator, like other disputed things, which 5 I think they perhaps ought to do when you get 6 into such just different versions.

7 But if it's something like, Well, this 8 means "quick" and this means "fast," well, the 9 judge doesn't have to -- I mean the way we 10 tried to draw the rule was the judge may just 11 submit the translation and it's not going to 12 make any difference rather than getting up and 13 arguing about something that's insignificant.

14 So you can see the change that we made.
15 You all have considered this. You see the 16 change that we made is to (f), "When there are 17 either conflicting translations filed by more 18 than one party under subparagraph (a), or 19 objections to another party's translation
20 filed under subparagraph (b), nothing in this 21 rule requires or precludes the automatic
22 admission into evidence of the conflicting 23 translations or requires that the issue of the 24 correctness of the translation is an issue for 25 the finder of fact other than the court or for

1 the court rather than the finder of fact."

2 We just put it vice versa. That's the 3 difference. That's the thing my committee 4 added that is different from what you've 5 before. Mark's committee drew it up, and you
6 all have made some minor corrections before, 7 and those have been -- we made those 8 corrections.

9 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Mark, let's
10 have your comments on this now.

11 MR. SALES: The idea was in the 12 discussion we had I think back in July about 13 this was what the situation is; that is, is it 14 a matter of law for the court to decide which 15 translation is right, or is that something 16 that you can just put before the jury and let 17 them decide? And the concern was to draw the 18 rule so that it doesn't necessarily force the 19 court to make the decision nor preclude the 20 court from saying this is a fact issue for the 21 jury.

22 And I think Buddy's committee has done 23 that. And that was really the intent when we 24 drafted this, was we were not trying to tell 25 the court that this is something the court has

1 to determine. It could well come down to a 2 battle of translators.

3 If it's the key word in a contract that 4 determines whether there's been a breach or 5 not, I could see a situation where that would 6 be for the fact finder. In other cases, where 7 maybe it's just obvious and whatever, maybe 8 it's a determination about whether it makes a 9 contract ambiguous or not, maybe that's 10 something that's more for the court to 11 decide. So I think this provision that 12 they've put in there probably takes care of 13 that concern, so I think it works fine with 14 what we had intended.

15 CHAIRMAN SOULES: What do you 16 mean "automatic admission into evidence of the 17 conflicting translations"?

18 MR. LOW: Well, that was I
19 think in there before. What I understand it 20 means is just the fact that you file it and 21 it's just automatically admitted. But the 22 court may --

23 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Without 24 further authentication, is that what you mean?

25 MR. LOW: I'm not sure. That

1 was in there before. We didn't really discuss 2 that.

3 MR. SALES: Well, I don't think
4 that part was in there before. Once you've 5 done basically the pretrial affidavit or 6 whatever we had required, then they cannot 7 attack the correctness of it unless they do 8 certain things. If they do certain things to 9 contradict it so that we know we really have a 10 dispute, then basically this provision (f)
11 then says at that point the court will decide 12 whether it's something for the fact finder or 13 if this is a matter of law for the court to 14 decide.

15 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. But 16 that doesn't get to --

17 MR. LOW: I'm not sure I
18 understand the question. Do you mean on (f)?

19 CHAIRMAN SOULES: On (f), the 20 middle part of it, "Nothing in this rule 21 requires or precludes the automatic admission
22 into evidence of the conflicting 23 translations."

24 MR. LOW: Well, we're again
25 trying to be consistent with whether or not

1 it's the finder of fact or the court,
2 "automatic" meaning that the court just 3 automatically submits it.

4 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Without
5 further authentication?

6 MR. LOW: Well, no. It's got 7 to already -- it's without further 8 authentication because the translation has 9 already been authenticated by the translator, 10 so there would be no further authentication
11 that I know of that you could make.

12 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. That's 13 probably nitpicking anyway. Joe Latting.

14 MR. LATTING: I just have a 15 question, Buddy or Mark, either one. Under 16 this rule, if you have a vehicle case and you 17 have an argument about the advertising of the 18 vehicle, and the plaintiff has an expert from 19 University A that says in Japanese this means 20 "Wild Ride," and the defense has an expert
21 from University B that says this means 22 "Steadfast Ride," does this mean that the 23 judge can decide that this means Wild Ride?

24 MR. LOW: No. What this means 25 is that it doesn't preclude the judge from

1 doing it; it doesn't say he has to do it. It
2 doesn't put it one way.

3 MR. LATTING: But he could 4 decide it?

5 MR. LOW: He could decide it,
6 and it may be error for him to do that, but 7 you've got to have a situation where like I'm 8 saying, one means quick, one means fast. The 9 judge doesn't have to -- certainly that's 10 going to the extreme, but the judge doesn't 11 have to submit -- he can submit either one and 12 it's not going to be error.

13 But we can't draw the differences in the 14 versions. They can be this far apart or this 15 close together (indicating). So the court -- 16 and we have many great judges in the state of 17 Texas that usually use discretion. Now, 18 whether that would be subject to review on the 19 abuse of discretion, I don't know.

20 MR. SALES: I was going to say 21 we went to that because the problem here is 22 that it's hard to draft a rule that would take 23 up every particular situation. Let's say the 24 dispute is over a contract and the key word 25 here decides whether there's been a breach or

1 not, that sounds like a fact issue to me, as 2 opposed to whether or not there is even an 3 ambiguity in the contract depending on a 4 translation, which is something you would 5 generally think the judge would have to rule 6 on first.

7 MR. LATTING: My concern on it
8 is that if there is a dispute about what 9 something means and if it's material, then it
10 seems to me that ought to go to a jury. I 11 don't think the judge ought to get to decide 12 that. If it's more like what you're talking 13 about, it wouldn't be a material fact 14 dispute.

15 But I'm nervous about judges. For 16 instance, let's say there was an area of the 17 state where the judges were very pro plaintiff 18 and let's say I was a defendant, just for the 19 example's sake. And the judge says, "I'm 20 going to submit this version of the contract.
21 I think this is what it means."

22 But I've got two guys from University of 23 San Francisco and one from UCLA that say 24 that's not what it means.

25 And the judge says, "Well, I think it is."

1           Let's submit it."

2           Now, under the way this is written, it 3 says that nothing requires that he submit that 4 to the jury. That bothers me.

5           MR. LOW: Well, but one of the 6 things, like for instance, I've got one that 7 says "fast" and another one "quick," and I 8 might argue. I say, "Look, 'quick' means just 9 as soon as you get to it. 'Fast' means" -- 10 you know, and then you get into it. And then 11 I give you Webster's definition of "quick" and 12 Webster's definition of "fast" and they're not 13 the same, you know, textually. Lawyers do -- 14 I don't know. We had just agreed -- I'm not 15 disagreeing. But when it comes down to it, it 16 would almost mean that every one you had to 17 just submit both versions and let the jury, 18 and that might be what I'd do as a judge, but 19 I don't know.

20           MR. SALES: I think that's the 21 situation that we've got right now, though, if 22 you submit your translation, rather than have 23 this thing where people just show up at trial
24 with their translator and you have a fight. I 25 mean, the court right now can make that

1 decision whether it is or it isn't. I don't 2 know. But are you worried that is somehow 3 changing the practice as it is?

4 MR. LOW: I don't know.

5 MR. SALES: I mean, I think 6 right now if you do that the court is going to 7 say, "Is this something that smells like an 8 issue of law that I decide, or does this smell 9 like something for the fact finder?"

10 CHAIRMAN SOULES: The Supreme 11 Court were to adopt this rule, it seems to me 12 that it becomes a matter of the trial court's 13 discretion whether to decide this fact issue 14 without a jury or with a jury, because the 15 rule is saying that the trial judge can do it 16 either way.

17 MR. LATTING: Yeah, that's what 18 I was saying.

19 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Now, I don't 20 know whether that gets to the constitutional 21 question of denial of a jury trial, but it may 22 be. Maybe the Supreme Court can't pass a rule 23 that says the judge can take a fact question 24 away from a jury when there really is a fact 25 question.

1 JOHN MARKS: Well, is
2 interpreting a contract or interpreting a
3 writing traditionally a law question?

4 CHAIRMAN SOULES: What we've 5 got here is a contract that says three little 6 things and two things across the top and none
7 of them are connected and you can find it on a 8 pagoda somewhere in the middle of China.
9 That's what the contract says. Nobody in the 10 courtroom, except two interpreters who differ 11 on what that means, can possibly construe that 12 contract. So now we've got an interpreter 13 saying "this is the contract," but it's really 14 not, because it's not the paper that the party
15 signed or e-mailed or whatever they do 16 anymore, and the other one says, "No, this is 17 the contract" and it's really not either the 18 contract itself. It's a translation of the 19 contract. Okay? Assume there's a material 20 difference, if there's a difference in the 21 translations which is material to the judgment 22 in the case, the ultimate judgment in the 23 case.

24 MR. LATTING: Well, that's a
25 fact question then. What does that document

1 say in Chinese? That's a fact question that 2 ought to be submitted to the trier of facts, 3 it seems to me. Once we know what it says and 4 what it means in English, then we're right 5 back to the traditional role of the court to 6 decide whether it's material or whether it's 7 anything that ought to go to a jury.

8 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, it's 9 certainly within the purview of this Committee 10 to recommend to the Court whether it be one or 11 the other. And there may be some 12 constitutional implications of one that are 13 not present in the other. I don't think 14 this -- to say it can go either way, if it 15 adds anything, then it probably only adds that 16 the Supreme Court is telling the trial judge 17 that that difference in translations material
18 to the judgment can be resolved by the trial 19 judge without submitting it to the jury.

20 MR. LATTING: And we take away
21 from the jury the ability to judge the 22 credibility of the translators.

23 CHAIRMAN SOULES: That's what 24 this would say, so...

25 MR. SALES: But you can have

1 issues, though -- let's say it was proof of 2 foreign law and you have a statute in Arabic
3 and you have a translator come in. You're not 4 saying that's something that you're going to 5 give the jury. The judge would have to decide
6 that under 203. I'm just saying there's a 7 whole range here and it's going to be very 8 difficult to say without having the context of 9 the situation whether this is an issue of fact 10 or an issue of law. I don't know how you can 11 give a hard and fast rule here, is the 12 problem.

13 MR. MARKS: Well, I thought the 14 intent here had to do with the court's 15 determination. First he has to determine 16 whether it's material and should go to the 17 jury or should not go to the jury. This just 18 was intended to make it clear that if it 19 should go to the jury, it can. I don't think 20 anybody was trying to play with words or make 21 something other than that. It's just that it 22 is sort of a gray area, and there are 23 situations where it would be a court call and 24 there are situations where it would be a jury 25 call. And ultimately the court is going to 1 have to make that decision.

2 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: It says
3 nothing in this rule.

4 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay.
5 Anything else on this rule? Rusty McMains.

6 MR. McMAINS: It seems to me
7 that we basically still have this 30-day time
8 limit which is absolute, and there doesn't 9 appear to be any discretion whatsoever. That 10 is, if somebody files a translation under (a) 11 and you don't object with an objection that 12 has all the components of (b) and that is 13 served within 30 days, then you don't even 14 have the right to call live witnesses to 15 contest that, as I read this rule. So that is 16 just an absolute 30-day default without regard 17 to anything else, which means they can sneak 18 it in and you can somehow get by the 30 days 19 and then that's it and you cannot contest that 20 that is in fact what it says and they will 21 should receive any oral testimony to the 22 contrary. That's the hardest default rule
23 we've got in the rules, and that's all right 24 if that's what you want to do.

25 MR. SALES: Well, you've got

1 that with medical records to prove up. You
2 already have that. This is very similar to 3 that.

4 MR. McMAINS: It doesn't keep 5 the doctor from testifying. This does.

6 MR. SALES: You can't contest
7 the value of the charge if you don't do 8 something, if you don't file it.

9 MR. McMAINS: It doesn't mean
10 you can't cross-examination the doctor or call 11 his.

12 CHAIRMAN SOULES: We can't get 13 a record on this. Mark, you've got the floor.

14 MR. SALES: I'm just saying the 15 whole point of this rule is, and there's no 16 question there's a lot of this going on as we 17 get into more international litigation, is 18 this is something to try to save the trial 19 court and the parties a lot of time and 20 expense and to put some -- if you're going to 21 do this, if there is really going to be an 22 issue about a translated document, it seems 23 like it needs to be handled before you get 24 down to the courthouse and you put on a bunch
25 of translators and you've got a real mess down

1 at the courthouse with this thing. It could 2 be dealing with Arabic. It could be Chinese.
3 Who knows what it is. And if you don't have 4 some mechanism to do it up in front, then 5 you've lost the total value of the rule.
6 There's no point to having one.

7 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Judge
8 Brister, did you have remarks on this? Bill
9 Dorsaneo.

10 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: What is 11 the time on the medical?

12 MR. SALES: 14 days.

13 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: 14 days.
14 One would think if we're going to have a time,
15 it ought to be the same time rather than a 16 whole series of things that you have to 17 memorize to do this by such and such time.

18 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Do you mean
19 if I get --

20 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: If I have 21 to do things before trial, I in my head want 22 to know that I have to do them 30 days or 14
23 days before, not that I have to do some things 24 30 days before, some things 60 days before, 25 some things 14 days before. I could probably

1 deal with that if I was smart enough in my 2 office to do all those things, you know, in 3 the longest period before. But it's hard to 4 remember all these details if they're 5 different, and I have some concern about this 6 being a good idea because there will be people 7 who don't hit the ball because they're not at 8 the plate.

9 MR. SALES: I'd be interested
10 in what the judge -- I mean, my view is that 11 this is the kind of stuff you've just got to 12 get out of the way and you can't wait until 13 the end. First of all, especially if it's 14 translation, and if you've ever dealt with 15 this, it's not an easy task to get a 16 translator on some of these deals and have 17 them translated. It's a very expensive
18 process to have someone translate a 50-page 19 document charging you $10 a word or something, 20 I don't know, and then to turn it around and 21 you go get your translator and have them spend 22 a whole bunch of money. And then at this 23 point we don't know whether we even have a 24 dispute or not.

25 I think it's something that -- you know,

1 I'm not saying we have to be wed to 60 days,
2 but I think it has to be a reasonable enough
3 period of time ahead of trial. 14 days to me
4 is not going to get it.

5 MR. McMAINS: Wait a minute, I
6 think you're missing the deadline point. He's 7 talking about that you shouldn't have to file 8 the objection until 14 days before trial, not 9 that you shouldn't have to file the affidavit 10 60 days before trial. What Bill is suggesting 11 is kind of a compromise, that up to 14 days 12 prior to trial you still have an ability to 13 object. And everything he's saying actually 14 suggests that you should have more than 15 30 days.

16 The problem with this rule is basically
17 it's a 30-day game. You only have to go 18 60 days before trial to file that affidavit 19 and you've got to wait 30 days and the other 20 side is bound after that 30 days. That means 21 that you could be working with a translator
22 for two years, and 60 days prior to trial you 23 file a half a million pages of records and 24 you've got 30 days to do something, and there 25 ain't no discretion and no limitation here

1 with regards to being able to relieve you from 2 that period. What that translator says is in 3 the records, is the records, and is 4 indisputable, and you've got 30 days to deal 5 with it.

6 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: No. It
7 says the time limits can be varied by order of 8 the court.

9 MR. SALES: It's not hard and 10 fast. If you've got a situation where you 11 know it's going to be an issue, you can 12 address that with the court through a 13 scheduling order.

14 CHAIRMAN SOULES: I haven't had 15 much experience with translations but I've had 16 a little bit, and 30 days is not very long to 17 get a counter-translation done.

18 MR. McMANS: Part (c) says in 19 a civil case no objection is timely served, 20 and (b) says in a civil cases objections shall 21 be served upon all parties 30 days prior to 22 the commencement of the trial, and the 23 objection shall point out the specific 24 inaccuracies of the original translation and 25 what the objecting party contends would be an

1 accurate translation.

2 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: It
3 seems to me there are two paradigms you could 4 follow here. Chapter 18 on proving bills 5 reasonable and necessary, the assumption is 6 there that doctors are always going to say 7 they're reasonable and necessary because 8 there's going to be some kind of government
9 fraud usually if they don't. And let's save 10 having to do a deposition on written questions 11 on every one or calling the doctor to trial to 12 prove it up, because almost always the 13 evidence is going to be these are the bills
14 and they're reasonable and necessary.

15 The other paradigm is just a standard
16 expert report. File a motion, order the other 17 side to give me the expert reports at such and 18 such a time and I do my expert reports at such 19 and such a time, and we decide at the hearing 20 what times those are going to be.

21 I don't have a lot of experience either 22 with translations, but my experience has been 23 more often the first rather than the second;
24 that usually there's not a dispute about what 25 the translation says; that the cases where you

1 have experts swearing that the contract says
2 two different things are pretty rare.

3 And so it seems to me, if it's almost 4 always an agreed thing, you ought to do it
5 like Chapter 18. If you think it's something 6 that's going to be contested, then you ought 7 to do it like under the motion to put the 8 burden on the parties to get a report and do 9 it on an individual basis, which I guess since 10 I think there's usually not a contest, I
11 usually think the first is going to go. I 12 don't have a problem with doing this one, the 13 format of doing it, you know, because that 14 assumes it's usually not going to be 15 contested.

17 Dorsaneo.

18 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: I have one
19 other question here. When it says here that 20 "the time limit set forth herein may be 21 varied by order of the court," is it possible 22 to read that as that Judge Brister could 23 let -- if he really believed that the 24 translation was inaccurate because he speaks 25 that language -- let it happen at trial?

1 "I'll vary the time limit. I'll let you call
2 the witness. Do it at the trial." Does it go 3 that far, Mark?

4 MR. SALES: The intent of this
5 is to keep this from coming up at trial, let's 6 decide it before. I think the intent of that 7 language was to say if you have an unusual
8 case.

9 Let's say the whole case is in German and 10 every document and everything, where you might 11 have a lot, maybe you need to go to the court 12 and say, "We're going to need to back this 13 time up a lot more because there's a lot more 14 translation issues here." Whereas maybe if 15 it's a single document, then there's not a big 16 problem. I think the intent is clearly not to 17 preclude that from being varied if you have a 18 really serious translation issue.

19 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Richard, you
20 had your hand up first.

21 MR. ORSINGER: I've got a
22 number of problems with this. One is that I
23 don't think it's smart to say any accurate 24 translation is admissible, because you don't 25 know whether it's accurate or not until you

1 have -- I mean, it begs the question. It says
2 an accurate translation of a foreign language 3 record is admissible upon a certification that 4 it's accurate, but the truth is that the 5 certification doesn't establish its accuracy.

6 It's still subject to objection disputes,
7 so I think we ought to take the word
8 "accurate" out of the first line.

9 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Very first 10 line. Any objection to that? No objection.
11 That's done.

12 MR. ORSINGER: We talk here
13 about the admissibility of the document, but 14 we don't mention anything about experts 15 relying on it without offering it into 16 evidence. And I can tell you right now that 17 if I miss my deadline, if I had made proper 18 disclosure, then I would make the response to 19 Bill that you're going to have to have an 20 expert, if you're dealing with a foreign 21 language, and you're going to have to disclose 22 the existence of the expert as soon as 23 practical but no less than 30 days prior to 24 trial or whenever our supplementation deadline 25 is, so there will be disclosure of the 1 possible existence of a contrary language

2 expert just under our regular Discovery Rules.

3 But if I was caught in a crack under this 4 rule, I would call in an expert that I had 5 disclosed early in the case and have them rely 6 on their own interpretation of it, even though 7 the translation itself might not be 8 admissible. And I'm wondering if we're really 9 accomplishing our purpose there to confine our 10 admission of a literal written translation
11 when experts can run circles around this rule 12 by relying on it and relating their opinion.

13 And then another problem I have with this 14 rule is what do you do if you have 15 controverting expert affidavits? Are those 16 affidavits in the toilet, and now we're 17 talking about live testimony? Or do we let 18 both affidavits in and let the jury decide 19 which affidavit to believe, or does the judge 20 decide which affidavit to believe and let in 21 only the translation that he or she thinks is 22 accurate? You know, normally the judge
23 doesn't let in evidence that the judge doesn't 24 think is accurate, unless it's a fact issue.
25 In other words, if evidence is not competent,

1           it's not supposed to come into evidence. But 2           if it's something that's subject to debate as 3           to its competence, then I think the trial
4           judge is supposed to let the jury resolve 5           that. And we don't say whether, if there are 6           controverting affidavits, whether the judge 7           decides which translation is accurate or 8           whether the judge requires oral testimony and 9           the jury decides which translation is 10          accurate.

11                 I would point out that if this was an 12          English contract, the meaning of the document 13          is to be determined from the four corners of 14          the document and is not a fact issue for the 15          jury, unless there's some ambiguity in its 16          meaning, so to me we have to address this 17          question of whether controverting opinions of 18          the meaning of a document is a fact issue for 19          the jury to resolve or whether it's a 20          preliminary admissibility issue for the judge 21          to resolve or whether it's based on affidavits 22          or sworn testimony.

23                                 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Alex
24          Albright.

25                                 PROFESSOR ALBRIGHT: Two

1 things. The first is the 60-day deadline.
2 When we were working on the Discovery Rules,
3 every time we had a 60-day deadline people
4 went nuts because you could have 45-days'
5 notice of trial, so nowhere in the Discovery
6 Rules do we require anything more than 45 days 7 before trial.

8 Secondly, this just keeps recurring, is 9 the problem with (f) that Richard just brought 10 out, which is what to do next. I would move 11 that we just delete (f). It seems to me that 12 what we're doing is maybe saying this is kind 13 of a pretrial procedure to determine if there 14 is an issue or not. And if there is an issue, 15 then you address it just like you do now, so I 16 would just take (f) out. I don't think it 17 helps us resolve anything.

18 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Buddy Low.

19 MR. LOW: I see that as an 20 alternative. I also see and have heard a 21 suggestion that perhaps where there is 22 material conflicting that it will be submitted
23 to the jury subject to the -- you know, I hear 24 what Richard is saying that some things may be 25 questions for the judge to decide. But that

1 might be an alternative; that if there are 2 material differences, they would be submitted
3 to the jury. I've heard that suggestion, so 4 I'm trying to summarize the suggestions of 5 what we might do so we can focus on which 6 direction we want to vote rather than change 7 this language or that.

8 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Having 9 heard the discussion, Buddy, what questions do 10 you have that you would like to have answers 11 to in order to redraft this for the November 12 meeting?

13 MR. LOW: Well, first of all, I 14 would like to know whether or not (f) should 15 be changed so as to state -- and I'm not 16 stating it perhaps the way whoever advocates 17 it would have stated it -- state that where 18 there were material differences in the 19 translation that, you know, if they are 20 authenticated translations, you know, and they 21 have been certified and so forth, that both 22 will be submitted to the jury for their 23 determination of which is accurate. Of 24 course, it would be a court trial if it's a 25 court trial, so it would be different.

1           The other thing is then if they -- first 2 would be whether to leave (f) as it is. Then 3 that. And then the third thing is to delete
4 (f), I guess. Those are the three 5 alternatives that I see, and the first one 6 would be to leave (f) as is.

7           CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. How 8 many in favor of leaving (f) as it is written 9 here in the proposed Rule 1009? One.

10           MR. LOW: All right. The next 11 one would be do we want to go to the next 12 alternative about if there are material 13 differences, then they would be submitted to 14 the jury.

15           CHAIRMAN SOULES: To the trier
16 of fact.

17           MR. LOW: To the trier of fact,
18 yeah.

19           MR. ORSINGER: Well, can I
20 propose an alternative? Because I don't like 21 warring affidavits going to the jury. I mean, 22 how in the hell is a jury supposed to know
23 what Chinese is when it's got two different 24 affidavits. I think that you ought to require 25 oral testimony if the trial judge believes

1 there'a bona fide dispute about the 2 translation.

3 CHAIRMAN SOULES: But isn't 4 that up to the advocates?

5 MR. LOW: If I've got one and I
6 want my version, I'm going to have my man
7 there, and man, I'm going have him looking 8 Japanese, feeling Japanese, drinking Japanese, 9 and I'm not going to just have his piece of 10 paper. Now, I hope the other side would.

11 MR. ORSINGER: But to me that's 12 more than trial strategy. To me we're making 13 a decision here about turning the 14 admissibility of evidence over to a jury,
15 which is a very unusual thing. In my opinion 16 this is an admissibility question, number
17 one. And number two, how is the jury supposed 18 to evaluate the credibility of affidavits when 19 there's no cross-examination?

20 CHAIRMAN SOULES: As I'm 21 understanding it, the threshold question of 22 admissibility is dependent upon the judge
23 finding that there are differences in the two 24 translation that may be material to the 25 judgment. If that is found, they are

1           admissible.

2                           MR. ORSINGER:  No, that's 3           not -- we're discussing what should happen if 4           that is found.  We're discussing whether we 5           ought to let the affidavits in, whether we 6           ought to require oral testimony at that point,
7           or what we should we do?  My proposal is it
8           makes no sense to put in two contradictory 9           affidavits with no right of cross-examination
10          and turn these affidavits and translations 11          over to a jury who doesn't speak the 12          language?  Why does that make any sense?

13                          MR. LOW:  But that's like a 14          contract.  You're going to talk about the 15          people that -- you're going to question
16          people.  There's going to be other evidence.
17          I mean, it's just going to question -- 18          somebody that takes the approach you do that 19          comes in is just going to get out-lawyered by 20          the other lawyer.  I mean, that's just a 21          point-blank.  I don't think you ought to say
22          that you've got to have oral testimony, I 23          mean.

24                          CHAIRMAN SOULES:  Bill Dorsaneo
25          on this point.

1                   PROFESSOR DORSANEO: It seems 2 to me that if you did have the unusual
3 situation where some experts had a very large 4 disagreement about what something meant and 5 under our normal principles that being the 6 only information that you could take into 7 account presumably, what they said it meant, 8 that you would run into the situation where 9 you would have to conclude that the language
10 is ambiguous. If two people say it means two 11 completely different things, then that would 12 require, I think, Richard, it would require 13 the people to come forward and say what they 14 intended.

15                   MR. LATTING: I don't agree 16 with that.

17                   CHAIRMAN SOULES: Don Hunt.

18                   MR. HUNT: It seems to me that 19 we're dealing here with admissibility and that 20 we ought to trust our trial judges to 21 determine by whatever basis they need to the 22 question of whether the translation is 23 admissible or not. I feel very comfortable in 24 trusting Judge Brister or Judge Peebles to 25 look at two affidavits and say, "There is a

1 conflict here. What do we do, Advocates?"

2 And I trust the advocates to have their 3 partisan affiants there to explain the two 4 warring positions. But it ought to be the 5 trial judge who makes this decision. We ought 6 not to be submitting to juries competing 7 affidavits or competing explanations by the 8 experts as to what the Chinese in the contract 9 means.

10 We've got to keep in mind that there's a 11 difference between submitting ambiguity to a 12 jury in an ordinary English contract. We're 13 not submitting what the words mean, which is 14 what we're talking about here; rather, we are 15 submitting what did the parties intend, 16 because we are trying to figure out what was 17 the underlying intent of the parties when they 18 chose these words and we don't understand the 19 words. So submitting intent when there's 20 ambiguity really is resolving what did the 21 parties mean and what did the parties intend.
22 That's not the preliminary question that has 23 to be decided on admissibility. It solely 24 ought to be a trial judge question to rule by 25 whatever is available. And once the trial

1 judge has ruled that this translation is 2 correct, it comes in; the other one doesn't.
3 And if that's wrong, that's a point of error
4 on appeal.

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Why don't we
6 just show a consensus on this. Don has stated 7 the proposition head on, whether it should be 8 a question of law for the court or a question 9 of fact for the trier of fact; that is, the 10 resolution of competing translations of the 11 same foreign language contract.

12 MR. LATTING: May I speak on 13 that briefly?

14 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Joe.

15 MR. LATTING: It's not always 16 that, because when we have an English
17 contract, we know what it says and we know 18 what the words are. But we have a Chinese 19 contract and we don't know what it even says, 20 and so therefore what the contract says and 21 how it should be translated into English is 22 the threshold question before we can know
23 whether there was an ambiguity.

24 For example, we don't know whether this 25 symbol that Luke described means the 13th or

1 the 14th, and we have a notice that was given 2 on the 14th. So was this deadline or was this 3 date the 14th that it was required by or was 4 it the 13th? We have a professor from one
5 university that says this and one from another 6 that says that, and I don't think we need a 7 trial judge to decide which of the two is the 8 more believable. We're not asking a jury to 9 resolve an ambiguity in the contract. We're 10 asking them there what does this contract say 11 in English. Now, once we get to that, then we 12 decide whether that's ambiguous. The trial
13 judge decides whether that's an ambiguous 14 document. And if it is, he submits that to 15 the jury, what did they intend? If it's not, 16 he rules as a matter of law.

17 But we've got a new wrinkle if we've got 18 a foreign because we don't even know what the 19 document says.

20 CHAIRMAN SOULES: David
21 Keltner, we haven't heard from you yet.

22 MR. KELTNER: The only thing I
23 would say that we're dealing with on the 24 initial question of admissibility is the 25 question of whether the translation is

1 accurate. And we don't use the term
2 "accuracy" in the rule. If we use the term 3 "accuracy," it takes out the problem of the 4 intent of the document, which is a legal 5 question based on what was admitted already.
6 So why don't we talk in terms of accuracy and 7 then make it a judge, I feel personally, a 8 judge decision.

9 MR. LOW: Luke, let me
10 elaborate on that. See, when we took out that 11 term "an accurate translation," then we've 12 gone to the thing of all you've got to do is 13 have somebody and they say it is, then a 14 translation shall be admissible. So you've 15 got two different translations, so when you 16 take out the word "accurate," that --

17 MR. KELTNER: Couldn't we put 18 "accuracy" in (f), and then when there's a 19 question about accuracy of the translation, 20 the judge or jury, whichever one it's going to 21 be, determines the accuracy for the threshold 22 admissibility?

23 MR. LOW: That's was the real 24 thing.

25 CHAIRMAN SOULES: The jury

1 can't determine admissibility.

2 MR. KELTNER: That's why I'm 3 going to suggest it's got to be the judge that 4 makes that determination. But it seems to 5 me --

6 CHAIRMAN SOULES: But what if 7 he can't? I've been in Judge Peeples' court a 8 lot and I agree with him most of the time, and 9 I think he's as incisive as any judge I've 10 seen, and Judge Brister too, but how do they 11 the accuracy of a translation from a foreign 12 language document unless they understand that 13 foreign language, comprehend that foreign 14 language?

15 HON. DAVID PEEPLES: Well, if 16 we can't do it, how is the jury going to do 17 it? I'm going to hold a hearing. And if one 18 guy teaches Chinese at Trinity University and 19 the other guy lived for there six months and 20 never studied it, that might bear upon the 21 question, but you have to decide those 22 qualifications maybe.

23 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, it
24 seems to me that the other evidence in the 25 trial is probably going to have some bearing

1 on what's really correct and what's really
2 accurate in the translation. In other words,
3 somebody does something, people are doing
4 things, they're headed towards the 14th.
5 Somebody else says, no, you drop dead on the 6 13th. No, this says the 14th.

7 Can't the conduct of the parties that are 8 going along there maybe have some bearing on 9 what the correctness is of the translation? I 10 don't know. Rusty.

11 MR. McMains: Well, you ask how 12 is the judge going to do it. The judge under 13 this rule has the power to appoint a 14 translator himself, so he actually has a 15 vehicle for doing it. The jury doesn't have 16 that power.

17 And secondly, this is a predicate issue.
18 I mean, it's not unlike any other predicate 19 that judges make factual determinations on all 20 the time. We don't submit predicate issues to 21 the jury. Predicate issues are fact issues
22 resolved at the discretion of the trial
23 judge. And the predicate here is a question
24 solely of accuracy. Now, what it means is a 25 legal issue, and I agree with what Buddy was

1 saying, that we're not determining legal 2 issues per se, but we are foreclosing
3 questions of accuracy under the way this rule 4 operates, and so that's all the rule is 5 designed to do. So I don't have that much of 6 a problem with letting the judge do it, 7 because that's what the judge should be doing.

8 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Richard
9 Orsinger.

10 MR. ORSINGER: I agree
11 totally. I think this is a judge issue. But 12 the difficulty in my opinion in international 13 translations is different from what we're 14 dealing with in English, and I'm trying to 15 think of an example.

16 And the best one I think think of is a 17 United States Supreme Court case that involved 18 an airplane that almost crashed but didn't and 19 lawsuits that were filed based on infliction 20 of emotional distress without bodily injury.
21 And it was controlled by the Warsaw agreement
22 or treaty on international air travel and it 23 was translated into 100 different languages, 24 but the controlling translation was French.

25 Now, the English translation said that if

1 you suffer an injury, you can recover for it.
2 The French translation said that if you
3 are "blesser" you can recover for it. If you 4 study the French and the background of the 5 French, "blesser" means that you are wounded.
6 Usually, at least traditionally, that means
7 that you bled in French. They use a different 8 word to describe an injury that does not lead
9 to blood. And since the French translation 10 was the controlling one, the Supreme Court of 11 the United States decided that if you didn't 12 suffer a wound, you were not entitled to 13 compensation, even though if English had been 14 controlling and the word "injury" had been 15 used, you might have been able to recover just 16 for your psychological fright.

17 Now, that points out to me the 18 difficulty. You can take a word like 19 "blesser" and you can say that means 20 wounded. That means injured, sure. And in 21 German it means whatever the Germans think 22 about it. But when it gets right down to it, 23 we might all agree that it's a similar 24 concept, but whether "blesser" means that you 25 must bleed before you can recover or whether

1 you can recover for a bruise or whether it's 2 only emotional distress becomes a very 3 sophisticated question and having Ph.D.s 4 doesn't help you answer that.

5 So I feel strongly, number one, that this 6 decision shouldn't be based on affidavits. I 7 think it's ludicrous to think that you can 8 decide this based on affidavits. And 9 secondly, if it is sworn testimony, it ought 10 to be decided by the judge.

11 MR. LOW: But that would be 12 like determining -- there would be a
13 difference. That's determining like a statute
14 or something as distinguished from Honda 15 putting out this and it goes to the public,
16 what it means to the public and so forth.
17 That's a law. I consider that as a law, an 18 interpretation of a law for the court.

19 And may I ask one question? You know, 20 you wanted to take out the word "accurate 21 translation." Look and see, would you take it 22 out also on (d), the second page, "This rule 23 does not prohibit the admission of an accurate 24 translation." Do you see that again on the 25 second page? Do you see (d)?

1 MR. McMAINS: The point of 2 taking it out in the first was that it assumed 3 the very fact in dispute; that is, the point 4 in taking it out in (a) was that we say, "an 5 accurate translation is admissible if it's 6 accurate." And you take it out and you say, 7 "a translation is admissible if it's 8 accurate."

9 The purpose in (d), I mean, a translation
10 is admissible, we're talking about live
11 testimony here, and so we say, "an accurate 12 transcription of a foreign language record is 13 admissible." Now, if you haven't complied 14 with the other procedure, then you're going to 15 have to have some predicate testimony that 16 this is an accurate translation of the 17 record. And that's all that (d) is required.
18 It's just saying that a translation is not 19 good enough, because the seminal issue is 20 accuracy.

21 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. We're 22 going to take a 10-minute break and give the 23 court reporter a break here and everybody 24 else. We'll be back at 10 after.

25 (Recess.)

1                   CHAIRMAN SOULES:  Let's resume,
2                   please.  What I have decided to do with 1009
3                   is to take volunteers who want to have interim 4                   input into 1009 and just try to form a little 5                   bit larger group than the Evidence 6                   Subcommittee for that.  And some people have 7                   been more vocal on that, and the concepts seem 8                   to be so fluid, at least at this time, that I 9                   don't think we're really going to get very far 10                  in terms of any resolution on 1009 at this 11                  meeting.

12                  MR. LOW:  One thing, Luke,
13                  though, is I think we've got some direction 14                  that we're going to leave off (f), and then 15                  the only question then is do we want to put in 16                  its place that it will always be decided, if 17                  it's controverted or material, by the jury.
18                  And I think if we leave it as it is and leave 19                  off (f), I think most people here would be 20                  satisfied with it.  I really do.

21                  CHAIRMAN SOULES:  Is everybody
22                  ready to vote on (f), to delete (f)?

23                  HON SAM HOUSTON CLINTON:  Let 24                  me ask a question.

25                  CHAIRMAN SOULES:  Judge

1 Clinton.

2 HON. SAM HOUSTON CLINTON:

3 Part (a) deals with kind of the general
4 approach to it. In the case of civil cases, 5 it says that the submission of the affidavit
6 and all shall be promptly served upon all
7 parties at least 60 days prior. Then when it 8 gets to criminal cases, however, it says that 9 the papers will be filed with the clerk and 10 that notice will be given to the other parties 11 that it's been filed.

12 Now, why is there a differentiation
13 there? Why are you not also serving a copy on 14 the opposite party in a criminal case like you 15 are in a civil?

16 MR. LOW: Because I think it's 17 probably presumed that any time you file
18 something you've got to give the other side a 19 copy. I don't know why the language is 20 different. Do you know why, Mark?

21 MR. SALES: We had a number of 22 criminal lawyers, and if you remember, this 23 thing started out in two separate rules.
24 There was a civil and a criminal. And the 25 criminal lawyers had drafted their version of

1 1009, and then this was some kind of merger
2 that Mike Prince's group did of the two. I
3 can't tell you why there's a difference, but I 4 think whoever the criminal practitioners were 5 on the committee thought there must be some 6 difference in the two practices.

7 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, this 8 allows the translation to be served and not 9 filed in civil cases. Not filed. It may need 10 to be filed in a criminal case, or it may need 11 to be both in a criminal case. Tell us which 12 is better for purposes of criminal cases.
13 Filing and serving?

14 HON. SAM HOUSTON CLINTON:
15 Frankly I think it's so rare that I don't know 16 if anything is better.

17 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Assume it 18 happens.

19 HON. SAM HOUSTON CLINTON: I
20 was just curious to know why there was 21 different treatment, that's all. And you've 22 explained, I guess, that that was drawn from 23 some prior criminal rule?

24 MR. SALES: Or practice, yes.

25 HON. SAM HOUSTON CLINTON:

1 Which escapes me, because I don't believe 2 we've ever had a question on this.

3 MR. LOW: No, no, the criminal
4 lawyers on the committee divided this. The 5 criminal lawyers drew this.

6 HON. SAM HOUSTON CLINTON: Oh,
7 they were divided?

8 MR. LOW: Yes.

9 CHAIRMAN SOULES: No, no. He's 10 not saying that the criminal lawyers were 11 divided among themselves. He's saying that 12 there were criminal lawyers writing one rule 13 and a divided group or a different groups of 14 other lawyers writing another rule, and they 15 used both paragraphs for giving notice.

16 MR. SALES: And maybe that's 17 something else that needs to be looked at. I 18 can't explain it except to say that I think 19 they must have thought there was some 20 difference procedurally or due process or 21 whatever the argument might be why they've 22 drafted it lightly different. So when they 23 did the mechanical merger of these two rules, 24 rather than try to make a substantive change, 25 they just included in criminal cases or in

1 civil cases.

2 CHAIRMAN SOULES: We've got to 3 get to Richard Orsinger's report, so without 4 further discussion I'm going to take -- first, 5 Buddy believes that the committee is ready to 6 vote up or down on 1009 two points: Delete or 7 keep (f), and then pass or reject the rule.

8 Those who think we're ready for that show
9 our hands.

10 MR. LOW: We've already voted 11 to delete (f).

12 CHAIRMAN SOULES: I don't think 13 so.

14 MR. LOW: I'm sorry.

15 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Does anybody
16 think we're ready? We're at that stage?

17 MR. ORSINGER: Not to pass the 18 rule.

19 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. So
20 Buddy, those who want to assist in the interim 21 the revisit to this rule show by hands so we 22 can make assignments to Buddy's subcommittee.
23 Anybody who really wants to have an input into 24 this needs to be on this interim working 25 committee, because we can't spend this much

1 time next time reworking through the same
2 problems. Okay. Joe Latting. Anyone else?
3 There were a lot of people doing a lot of 4 talking about this.

5 MR. LATTING: I didn't feel
6 like I had a right to gripe anymore unless I
7 held up my hand.

8 MR. ORSINGER: If I didn't have 9 so many fish to fry, I'd do it.

10 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Mark,
11 you're already working with Buddy, right?

12 MR. SALES: Right. And we'll 13 continue to work on a lot of this stuff

14 MR. LOW: We just need
15 direction.

16 CHAIRMAN SOULES: John, you're 17 already on this?

18 MR. MARKS: Right.

19 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Does anyone
20 else want to participate? Okay. As soon as 21 we have the transcript of this discussion,
22 Buddy, I'll send it to you, and you all can 23 pore over it and try to figure out how to deal 24 with the concerns that got raised. I would 25 say come back and maybe write two alternatives

1 on how to handle it, and one would be that the 2 judge would make the call on which translation 3 would be used. And then the next would assume 4 that in some circumstances, and you all can 5 muse about that, that in some circumstances a 6 jury would decide which translation would 7 control the case and under what circumstances.

8 MR. LOW: All right.

9 CHAIRMAN SOULES: And then also 10 in that context, what's the judge's role in 11 determining the admissibility of the evidence 12 of the translation.

13 MR. LOW: In determining what?

14 CHAIRMAN SOULES: The 15 admissibility of the evidence, of the 16 translation.

17 And then finally what evidence of the 18 translations would be admissible.

19 MR. ORSINGER: Luke, I would 20 propose that we address the question of 21 whether an expert can rely on a translation 22 that cannot be admitted, because if we don't 23 address that, they will end-run it every time.

24 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. That's 25 on the record, so that needs to be looked at.

1 MR. LOW: Richard, I'm sorry,
2 what was the last one?

3 MR. ORSINGER: I'll tell you.

4 MR. LOW: I was still writing.
5 I have trouble reading my writing. If I write 6 too fast, I can't read it at all.

7 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Now,
8 that's a nonexclusive list, because when you 9 get the transcript you're going to have the 10 whole debate.

11 MR. LOW: And Judge, you want
12 us to go back and look and see if we can make 13 the criminal the same; in other words, the 14 days, the filing and all?

15 HON. SAM HOUSTON CLINTON: I
16 really think in this instance it could be the 17 same.

18 CHAIRMAN SOULES: There's no
19 reason for a difference.

20 HON. SAM HOUSTON CLINTON: It 21 strikes me that it would be more economical in 22 terms of time if it were served rather than, 23 as it says, given prompt notice. And I would 24 raise a question about the definition of 25 "prompt" in these circumstances.

1 MR. LOW: Right.

2 HON. SAM HOUSTON CLINTON: I
3 think "service" would accomplish it.

4 MR. McMAINS: I do think Buddy
5 needs to determine what Alex was pointing
6 out. I mean, the requirement is that we file 7 something 60 days before notice of trial, and 8 yet we only need to have 45 days' notice, so I 9 don't know what --

10 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Why don't we 11 change it to 45 and 15 for now, because when 12 we get to notice of trial, amendment of 13 pleadings, and all these other things we're 14 going to -- that we've reserved the right to 15 go back to the Discovery Rules and maybe make 16 some adjustments. We've at the present time
17 written time deadlines that are consistent 18 with the existing rules, the exiting deadlines
19 in other rules. If those deadlines change, 20 then this will be one place we can go back and 21 look. But for now 45 and 15. Leave 30 days 22 for the counter-translation. Any objection to 23 that?

24 MR. LOW: 45 and 15 for the 25 calendar.

1 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Rusty.

2 MR. McMAINS: The only other
3 thing is that when we put this statement in 4 there that said that the judge can change the 5 times, can alter the times, we don't really 6 say what that means in terms of, you know, 7 whether it has to be done in advance. Because 8 when we talk about the objections and we talk 9 about the filing, we say it must be at least 10 this and it must be at least that, and then we 11 say that he can alter the times. Well, if 12 that means he can't alter the times when it 13 says it has to be at least 30 days before 14 trial at the moment, and you changed that to 15 15, we need to know what that "alter the 16 times" means.

17 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Mark has 18 indicated that in his mind that means the 19 judge can make it earlier but not later.

20 MR. SALES: Just like for 21 interrogatories or whatever.

22 CHAIRMAN SOULES: And if that's 23 where you come down, that's fine. If you
24 change your mind for that and have a reason 25 for it, that's fine too, but go ahead and

1 address that issue.

2 MR. McMAINS: Well, it needs to 3 be explicit, I think.

4 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Buddy,
5 can you give us a somewhat concise report on 6 the merged rules so that we at least have that 7 on the table, and then we'll move to Richard's 8 report.

9 MR. LOW: All right. The 10 merged rules are no substantive changes. We 11 did put some places where the civil was 12 different from the criminal, and we put in 13 criminal rules that might not even apply in 14 criminal cases. We didn't say "in civil 15 only," because if they don't apply, they're 16 just not going to be used, like the federal 17 courts. And so there are no substantive 18 changes, quite frankly. There may be a few 19 word changes, like for instance -- there just 20 aren't any substantive changes.

21 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay.

22 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: If the 23 answer is short, then give it by number: How 24 does this draft differ from the August 6th 25 draft"?

1 MR. LOW: All right. How it
2 differs in about -- there were five -- well,
3 we had some comments from one of Lee's clerks,
4 you know, and you made some comments. We went 5 went through all those comments, and most of 6 them were like word changes and should we do 7 this or that. We considered some of those;
8 some we referred back to Mark's committee.

9 What you have here basically -- if you
10 want me to go through and point out, I've got 11 two lists. I would prefer like "in accordance 12 with" instead of "in accord" or something like 13 that. There just aren't any changes that mean 14 anything other than clearing up.

15 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Let me ask
16 you a question, Buddy. Is the redline that we 17 see here for September 12th redlined against 18 the August 6th draft?

19 MR. LOW: Yeah.

20 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Fine.

21 Thank you.

22 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Anything else
23 on the merged rules? It looks like we're 24 making progress on that, and that's good.

25 Okay. Richard, you have the floor.

1 MR. ORSINGER: Thank you,
2 Luke.

3 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Thank you.

4 MR. ORSINGER: We have three 5 important things to talk about today. One is 6 the general agenda on the subcommittee on 7 Rules 15 through 165a. One is the rewrite on 8 the rules relating to the duties of clerks.
9 And one is our proposal, subcommittee proposal
10 on the recusal and disqualification rule.

11 And I would propose that we take up the 12 rules relating to district clerks first, and 13 that is a fairly thick packet that was brought 14 this morning that says Clerks Committee Report
15 to Supreme Court Advisory Committee by Bonnie 16 Wolbrueck, dated 9-20-96, so you'll need 17 this. And then what I'm going to do is turn 18 it over to Bonnie and ask her to explain what 19 the Clerks Committee is, and then let's go 20 through these.

21 I'll tell you generally that we're trying 22 to consolidate all the clerks rule into one
23 place, eliminate some anachronisms that exist
24 under the rules and to consolidate other 25 things under. And with that predicate,

1 Bonnie.

2 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Bonnie
3 Wolbrueck.

4 MS. WOLBRUECK: Thank you. To 5 begin with, as Richard said, we did combine 6 probably in whole or part in this first 7 section about 17 or 18 rules. And in doing so 8 we have tried to come up with a section just 9 concerning the duties of the clerk.

10 Just as a note, initially the Clerks 11 Committee had received a directive from the 12 subcommittee to include every rule into this 13 section that had anything to do with any 14 duties of the clerk, which meant the issuance 15 rules like the citations and writs. And I had 16 proposed that, and in fact our last committee 17 handout included some of that information.
18 The more we got into that, especially into the 19 writs, the more difficult it became to single 20 those out into a section for clerks without 21 completely repeating the rules in the clerks 22 rule and then repeating them again in the 23 regular rules. So we have since made a 24 decision before the last subcommittee meeting 25 to pull those back out again and keep those

1 separate and apart. It became more difficult, 2 as we continued, to be able to do that.

3 Yes, Richard.

4 MR. ORSINGER: Would you tell
5 everybody what the Clerks Committee is?

6 MS. WOLBRUECK: The Clerks
7 Committee has been made up of Doris and myself 8 along with several other county clerks and 9 district clerks around the state, and so they 10 have had some input into this as we have 11 continued through this process. Okay, 12 Richard?

13 MR. ORSINGER: Yeah, fine.
14 Thank you.

15 MS. WOLBRUECK: Okay. I will 16 continue, just if you have any questions at 17 any time, because many of these are complete 18 rewrites of the rules. And there's a comment 19 underneath each rule, if it is a new rule, as 20 a complete rewrite. There is some redlining 21 for some of the rules where there have just 22 been a few changes.

23 But beginning on the first page we have 24 added -- starting with Rule 23, which has been 25 deleted and then added as "Custodian of the 1 Record." We made it very clear that the clerk 2 shall be custodian of the record and have put 3 a statement to that effect in section (a).

4 Section (b), then, concerns the 5 assignment of case numbers, and it's real 6 interesting to note that in Rule 23, in that 7 one short sentence, that the words suits, 8 case, cause and file were all used in that one 9 sentence, and we decided to call it a case.
10 The subcommittee had made that recommendation, 11 so we have made an assignment of case
12 numbers. It clearly states that the case
13 numbers shall be assigned in order, and then 14 we have added a rule concerning severance,
15 severed causes and consolidated causes.

16 Right now, severed cases are assigned by 17 local rule, and in many counties they're 18 either dash-A, dash-B, all the way to dash-AAA 19 all the way through the alphabet. Some 20 counties assign a new case number. The 21 subcommittee made the recommendation to have 22 all severed causes to bear an entirely new 23 case number, so that recommendation is in 24 this.

25 And also there's a statement on

1 consolidating cases: Unless otherwise
2 directed by the court, all matters shall be 3 consolidated under the oldest pending case 4 number, so that is the other recommendation in 5 the assignment of cases.

6 MR. ORSINGER: I'd like to make
7 a comment, if I may, that Rusty has stepped 8 out of the room, but when this issue was 9 discussed before, he expressed some concern
10 that if the severed cause has a new case 11 number and not a hyphenated case number, that 12 it will lose its position on the docket. And 13 that's probably a practical problem, and 14 everyone needs to understand that by 15 specifying a new case number, that probably 16 means it will be treated as if it was a case 17 that was initiated on the day of severance, 18 which may be two years after it was initially 19 filed, and that may have a lot to do with 20 where you are in priority on trial settings
21 and things of that nature. If we don't do 22 that, I don't know how we're going to 23 computerize it, as a practical matter.

24 Bonnie, can you comment on that? Do 25 you --

1 MS. WOLBRUECK: Excuse me,
2 Richard. I double-checked with several 3 counties and the two largest counties in the 4 state. Dallas County has a rule that assigns 5 a completely new case number, and it's my 6 understanding that Harris County does the 7 dash-A, and the problem with that being that 8 it gets to dash-ZZZ or ZZZZ and trying to keep 9 that all separate and apart, and so I'm not 10 sure.

11 In my county we assign an entirely new 12 case number. It actually does not affect any 13 orders of the case because the judge may take 14 up that matter along with any other matters as 15 far as the severed cause is concerned. But I 16 realize that that's an issue from county to 17 county.

18 The clerks felt that it would be better 19 to have uniformity in that so that the 20 attorneys knew. I know that I receive orders 21 sometimes on severed causes that suggest it
22 shall be a dash-A when we have a local rule 23 that says it shall be an entirely new number.

24 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Why is it
25 better to have an entirely new number than a

1 dash-A?

2 MS. WOLBRUECK: I think just
3 for trying to keep up with it. Attorneys
4 don't always know exactly what -- assigning a 5 dash-A or dash-AA or dash-AAA to a severed
6 cause is real difficult whenever pleadings 7 start coming in and the attorney possibly 8 hasn't affixed the right designation to those 9 pleadings so that they get placed into the 10 right file. It becomes a clerk issue or 11 problem of filing.

12 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: But 13 then if it's an entirely -- I agree there's 14 lots of confusion. Attorneys file summary 15 judgments in the wrong case all the time. But 16 in Harris County at least the files, if it's 17 in the A, B or C, it's in the same part of the 18 courthouse, as opposed to if it's a number two 19 years later, it's going to be frequently in a 20 different part of the courthouse.

21 MS. WOLBRUECK: We had 22 discussed that issue and were wondering, 23 because we did not make a determination of 24 what court that should be assigned to. I 25 think the time assignment of the court has to

1 be done by local rule, and maybe that will 2 address that issue. I mean, I think a local 3 rule can address where a severed cause should 4 be placed as far as what court and why.

5 MR. ORSINGER: Well, Judge
6 Brister is actually talking about where the 7 file is stored.

8 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: I'm 9 assuming it's staying in the same court.

10 MS. WOLBRUECK: Then I think 11 that could be addressed by local rule then, if 12 it stays in the same court.

13 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: Well,
14 I'm assuming that it is staying in the same 15 court. But just because it's in my court
16 doesn't mean that half of your files are there 17 and half are over there and half are 18 downstairs. I guess that's three halves; I
19 should have said thirds. But they're spread 20 all over. And the nice thing about having the 21 A, B and Cs is they're together.

22 But it's not anything I want to get very 23 worked up about.

24 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay.

25 Bonnie, go ahead.

1 MS. WOLBRUECK: Would you like
2 to address that, Luke? Should we take a 3 consensus?

4 CHAIRMAN SOULES: It doesn't
5 seem like it's causing anybody any concern
6 other than a comment, so let's just go forward 7 with it. Carl Hamilton.

8 MR. HAMILTON: I have a
9 question about why is it perceived that the 10 court in which a case gets assigned has to be 11 controlled by local rule.

12 MS. WOLBRUECK: It's not 13 controlled by these rules, so we make the 14 assumption that it's controlled by local rule, 15 because most local rules make that 16 determination.

17 MR. HAMILTON: I'm just 18 wondering if we shouldn't have that in the 19 rule, some direction about how the cases are 20 assigned to courts to prevent forum shopping.

21 CHAIRMAN SOULES: There are so
22 many ways that's done, Carl. Some of us with 23 a sick curiosity have looked at the local 24 rules of a lot of counties, and the way cases 25 get assigned is just a myriad of ways.

1 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: And 2 some of them are really bad.

3 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Some of them
4 are bad. More and more they're just random.
5 Anyway, maybe let's hold that thought and just 6 get to the end.

7 DORIS LANGE: I think we would 8 like to see some uniformity in this, but if 9 you want to leave it up to local rules, that's 10 up to you all. But we as clerks were trying 11 to get uniformity, and the only way you're 12 going to get uniformity is to tell us, "This 13 is the way you're going to have to do it."

14 MS. WOLBRUECK: I think the 15 issue had come before the subcommittee at one 16 point in time, and there was a concern of 17 trying to make that determination, because 18 it's real difficult. You have counties that 19 have courts that are in different areas and 20 they're not just in the courthouse, and the 21 assignment of cases are handled possibly 22 differently than a county that has all of 23 their courts within the same county, and there 24 are reasons for it. Possibly the reason why 25 they do things as far as local rules are

1 concerned -- I mean, this is not an issue that 2 the clerks would like to address. If this 3 committee would like to make that designation, 4 that's fine, Luke.

5 CHAIRMAN SOULES: I don't think
6 we can ever resolve that anyway. In Bexar
7 County it makes no difference what the court 8 assignment is. In Harris County, at least at 9 one point, if you had extraordinary relief on 10 the ancillary docket in a case, even though it 11 might be assigned to Judge Brister, if it went 12 to the ancillary court, then the old case got 13 transferred to the ancillary court for trial.

14 HON. SCOTT A. BRISTER: Now
15 it's even more confusing than that.

16 CHAIRMAN SOULES: So we 17 probably can't -- and these local practices
18 have grown up. At least let's get through 19 what we've got here today, and if we can hold 20 that thought, maybe somebody can figure out 21 how to make case assignments uniform
22 effectively.

23 MS. WOLBRUECK: Section (c)
24 just had to do with the filing and it had to 25 with Rule 24, and it just clarifies that all

1 documents received by the clerk shall be file
2 marked. Rule 24 had basically just noted that 3 the petition shall be filed, and this was just 4 to clarify that all documents received by the 5 clerk shall be filed.

6 Going on to the next page, section (d), 7 this is a consolidation of several different 8 rules. It's actually a consolidation of 9 Rule 25, which had to do with the clerk's file 10 docket; Rule 26, the clerk's court docket; 11 Rule 27, the order of cases; Rule 218, the 12 jury docket; and also Rule 656, the execution 13 docket.

14 And basically what we have determined 15 here is we are trying to put together what is 16 called a clerk's record. And this rule 17 actually requires the clerk to keep a record 18 of all filings, all issuance, pleadings, 19 orders, et cetera. With consideration of the 20 resources from county to county, the rule 21 would allow the record to either be kept 22 manually in books and/or on docket sheets or 23 to be kept electronically. And basically we 24 have tried to consolidate that into this one 25 rule.

1           It basically changes the way things are 2 done a little bit, but actually it doesn't.
3 Actually it just combines them all to where 4 basically it just combines those rule into 5 this one area and sort of clarifies the way 6 recordkeeping can be done. And with 7 technology moving today is one of the reasons 8 why this has been done.

9           Section (e) has added an index, and 10 actually these rules didn't have an index in 11 them. I thought that was very unusual that we 12 considered a great deal as far as keeping the 13 clerk's filing and filing petitions and the 14 like and there was not an index, so we have 15 added an index to this rule and designate that 16 the clerk shall keep that index.

17           And (f) on the next page has to do with 18 the permanent record. Basically this 19 states -- and the subcommittee has assisted 20 with this as to what shall be included in the 21 permanent record.

22           For your information, the state library
23 sets guidelines for clerks and for other 24 entities as far as what is permanent and what 25 is not. They do that by their advisory

1 committee, but it is done by reviewing all 2 rules and statutes pertaining to that. And 3 basically all dockets which include minutes of 4 the court and judgments of the court and like 5 are considered permanent records, so this just 6 clarifies what is to be permanent, which shall 7 be the case number, the names of parties and 8 attorneys, the final judgment or other court
9 order disposing of any party, claim or case,
10 and any writs of execution and returns
11 thereon. This is what should be permanently 12 maintained by the clerk.

13 MR. HAMILTON: It there some 14 time period that it's not permanent that you 15 dispose of the rest of the records?

16 MS. WOLBRUECK: Yes. In fact,
17 the state library sets that, and it's 20 years 18 after judgment, unless the judgment has been 19 revived by execution, and there are some 20 guidelines on that, but that's set by the 21 state library. All of the court pleadings and 22 the like, the other pleadings in the file, are 23 set by the state library, and they continue to 24 review that through their advisory committee.

25 MR. ORSINGER: I might mention

1 that one thing that occurs to me that we don't 2 put in here is payments made on the judgment.
3 In Bexar County, my experience is that you 4 have to go handwrite on the minutes the 5 payments that you've received on the 6 judgment. And if there's execution and the 7 sheriff sale generates the money, it goes into 8 the permanent record. We don't require -- the 9 rules don't require that we keep track of what 10 part of a judgment has been paid, and I don't 11 know whether we should or shouldn't. I assume 12 the practice in Bexar County is just a local 13 practice.

14 MS. WOLBRUECK: There are some 15 other practices around the state similar to 16 that.

17 MR. ORSINGER: Just go
18 handwrite on the minutes?

19 MS. WOLBRUECK: I'm wondering
20 if the writs of execution with the return 21 thereon should clarify it?

22 MR. ORSINGER: No, because the 23 return would occur before the sale. I think 24 the return of the writ of execution means that 25 you've levied on the property, but later on

1 you're going to have an order of sale and 2 you're going to have something that reflects 3 money was received by the state on behalf of 4 the holder of the judgment, and I'm not sure 5 what that is, frankly, and we don't provide 6 for it to be kept permanently and we probably 7 should.

8 CHAIRMAN SOULES: What
9 evidences the proceeds received from the 10 sheriff's sale?

11 MS. WOLBRUECK: I'm sorry,
12 Luke, I didn't hear you.

13 CHAIRMAN SOULES: What
14 evidences -- what document, if any, evidences 15 proceeds received from a sheriff's sale?

16 MS. WOLBRUECK: Just the order
17 of sale itself. It will have that information 18 on that, and that's to be kept. See, that's 19 part of the court's file that's kept for 20 20 years after judgment.

21 CHAIRMAN SOULES: And does that 22 say how much money was gotten, the order of 23 sale?

24 MS. WOLBRUECK: Yes. And like
25 I said, again, that's part of the court file

1 that has to be kept at least 20 years after 2 judgment, and if that judgment has been 3 revived by execution, there's an additional 4 time period.

5 MR. ORSINGER: Well, if the 6 record is kept as long as the judgment is 7 collectible, then we don't need to worry about 8 keeping it permanently, because once the 9 judgment is no longer collectible, who cares 10 how much of it was paid?

11 MS. WOLBRUECK: And it is.
12 According to the guidelines by the state 13 library, it is.

14 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Going
15 forward.

16 MS. WOLBRUECK: (g) then goes
17 into the issuance, and this is the section 18 that we have revised since the last meeting in 19 the information that was handed out.
20 Basically it just talks about the clerk 21 issuing all writs and process, and then it has 22 an additional statement that actually has to 23 do with Rule 145 that the clerk shall endorse 24 thereon "affidavit of inability" if in fact it 25 has been filed. And we have purposely not

1           tried to make reference to other rule numbers
2           if we could. There are some instances in here
3           where we have, but it makes it much easier 4           whenever rule numbers change.

5           Going on to (h), this has to do with the 6           transfer or change of venue. And basically 7           this combines Rule 89, which had to do with a
8           transfer on a motion and also Rule 261 on a 9           change of venue. And these two have been 10          combined to just include the clerk's duties as 11          far as preparing the transcript and forwarding 12          on to the other clerk. And it puts in here 13          the notice that the clerk shall notify the 14          plaintiff of the transfer and any filing fees
15          that are due, and that comes out of Rule 89.

16          Going on then --

17                         MR. ORSINGER: Bonnie, for 18                         clarification, does the transferring court 19                         retain anything other than court orders?

20                         MS. WOLBRUECK: Yes. It says
21                         here what we shall do. Basically you make a 22                         transcript of all original papers and 23                         certified copies of all court orders. We send 24                         on the originals and only retain with the 25                         transferring clerk the minutes of the court,

1 which are the court orders.

2 MR. ORSINGER: So the original
3 pleadings are actually shipped out? There's 4 no further record of it other than just your 5 index?

6 MS. WOLBRUECK: That's right.

7 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Why do you
8 have "a transcript of" in there? Why 9 shouldn't you say "all original papers of the 10 cause"?

11 MS. WOLBRUECK: That probably 12 came out of Rule 89.

13 MR. ORSINGER: Let's take it
14 out.

15 CHAIRMAN SOULES: "Send to the 16 clerk of the court to which the venue has been 17 changed all original papers and certified 18 copies" -- all the.

19 DORIS LANGE: Well, the 20 transcript is the summary.

21 MS. WOLBRUECK: I think it will 22 be all right. I think that will be fine, 23 Luke. It was just wording that happened to be 24 taken out of the other rules.

25 CHAIRMAN SOULES: I think we

1 talked about having orders filed. We may have 2 even voted to do that, so I guess that would 3 read "all original papers in the case other 4 than orders and copies of all orders."

5 MS. WOLBRUECK: Yeah. We'll 6 change that wording to make that work.

7 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Good
8 enough. Go forward.

9 MR. KELTNER: We've got one
10 potential problem with this due to the rule
11 change back in the '70s. Remember, this rule 12 read when there was no venue appeal -- or it 13 was changed when we decided that there
14 wouldn't be any interim appeal of venue. Now 15 what you have is you have an order to transfer 16 and the court, as part of that order, is going 17 to be directed to send everything to the new 18 court. That's going to be reviewable, though, 19 by an interim appeal now, not awaiting final 20 judgment.

21 The old rule said that you kept them with 22 the court for the time period for the appeal, 23 and we probably ought to do so now again, 24 because we've got family law cases in which 25 you have an interim appeal. We have now tort

1 reform statutes giving interim appeal.

2 The question is, where do you appeal
3 from? And you have to appeal from the court 4 that ordered the transfer or didn't order the 5 transfer, as the case might be.

6 MR. ORSINGER: Better add a
7 sentence that says if an appeal is taken that 8 the physical transfer will not occur until the 9 appeal is resolved.

10 PROFESSOR ALBRIGHT: You mean
11 an interlocutory appeal?

12 MR. ORSINGER: There is an 13 interlocutory appeal in certain circumstances 14 on a denial of venue.

15 PROFESSOR ALBRIGHT: But you
16 don't want to say any appeal.

17 MR. KELTNER: Right. That's a
18 good point. Let me do this: I think I have a 19 copy of the prior rule. Let me get that to 20 Bonnie. I think that served us well for 21 years. It ought to serve us well here, and 22 I'll get her a copy of that.

23 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. So (h)
24 needs to be modified, Bonnie, so that if there 25 is an interlocutory appeal taken, the papers

1 don't go to the transferee court until that's 2 resolved. How you handle that, David is going 3 to give you some assistance on.

4 MS. WOLBRUECK: Okay. (i) then 5 talks about just the filed exhibits. This is 6 a new rule from 75b which basically just 7 clarifies that the exhibits shall remain in 8 the custody of the clerk.

9 And (j) then has to do with the 10 disposition of exhibits, depositions and 11 discovery. This is basically what comes out 12 of Rule 14b and Rule 209. 14b had to do with 13 exhibits, and Rule 209 had to do with 14 depositions and the clerk's ability to dispose 15 of these. This was done by Supreme Court 16 order, and we're proposing this to be a rule.
17 There are two changes within this proposal
18 from the original rule. One of them adds 19 discovery, all discovery to this rule as far 20 as being disposed of after the time periods 21 listed on Page 4 under (1) and (2). Our 22 concern, of course, for clerks is that we have 23 a great deal of information as far as 24 discovery in these files.

25 In light of the Supreme Court's rule, the

1 Dallas County rule as far as discovery not 2 being filed, it would be very beneficial for 3 clerks whenever all matters are disposed of in 4 the court case and the clerk is microfilming
5 the case that we would not have to microfilm 6 the discovery also. And there are millions of 7 pages in Harris County alone that are 8 discovery that are having to be microfilmed
9 today and stored permanently on microfilm.
10 And thus, that's the reason for this discovery 11 to be added to the disposition of not only 12 exhibits and depositions but all other 13 discovery.

14 On top of Page 5 there is -- one of the 15 other things that we were concerned about in 16 this rule was the notice that's required of 17 clerks to be sent. Each of you have probably 18 received a notice from a clerk that says we're 19 going to dispose of some exhibits, and that 20 case has been disposed of for many, many 21 years. You don't even know what the case is 22 about anymore. You took your archives -- you 23 had to take your archives or else you called 24 the clerk and said, "What is this case? What 25 are these exhibits that you're fixing to 1 dispose of?" That happens to me every single 2 day.

3 And what we have proposed here -- and 4 there's an error here that needs to be 5 corrected. On Page 5, third line down, 6 underlined, it says, "clerk of the court may 7 without notice to the parties of their 8 attorneys," if you would take that out,
9 please. And then note that on the next page 10 on Page 6 -- and this came out of the 11 subcommittee recommendation and I think it's a 12 good recommendation -- on Page 6, under 13 "Notices to be Mailed by the Clerk," under 14 number (3) is a disposition notice.

15 Whenever the clerk sends out a notice on 16 a default judgment or other appealable order, 17 just include in that notice also that all 18 exhibits and discovery will be disposed of by 19 the clerk of the court according to the time 20 periods and according to these rules, so that 21 attorneys are notified at that time that if in 22 fact you would like to recover these exhibits, 23 you may do so according to these rules.

24 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Why don't you
25 just change "without" to "with notice."

1 MS. WOLBRUECK: Okay. With 2 notice. Do I need to reference what that 3 notice is?

4 CHAIRMAN SOULES: I don't think
5 so. I think you can pick it up where you say 6 "Disposition Notice," right where you took 7 us.

8 MR. ORSINGER: Comment. In 9 reading this, I realize that I'm not 10 comfortable that any party can request any 11 exhibit. I think that parties ought only be 12 able to take the exhibits they offered in the 13 depositions that they filed.

14 MS. WOLBRUECK: Richard, that 15 had been in the original order also to where 16 they were allowed to do that, if you will 17 read --

18 MR. ORSINGER: Because this 19 last sentence in the top paragraph permits any 20 party to get any exhibit.

21 MS. WOLBRUECK: Yes.

22 MR. ORSINGER: And I would like
23 certainly to have the opportunity to get back 24 all of the exhibits I tendered and not let the 25 other party go down and get them all. That's

1 just a preference. I mean, it's usually not 2 an issue, but sometimes they're original
3 documents that you failed to get. If nobody 4 cares, I can live with it. It's not a big 5 issue. But it seems to me that since this is 6 all just between a lawyer and a clerk and 7 there's no intervening judge that we ought to 8 say you can get your own exhibits in the 9 depositions that you filed, but you can't get 10 the other party's exhibits without a court 11 order.

12 MS. WOLBRUECK: Richard, would 13 you like that to be rewritten to where the 14 party that submitted the exhibit may request 15 the release of it, and if they do not, then it 16 may be released to any others? And I can see, 17 because you do family law, that that can 18 certainly happen with pictures, family
19 pictures and the like. And if you haven't 20 requested it, could they be not then be 21 released to somebody else?

22 CHAIRMAN SOULES: The next
23 paragraph says, "If more than one party 24 requests the exhibit, the court will make 25 copies and prorate the cost." Does that take 1 care of the rare circumstances where more than 2 one party --

3 MR. McMAINS: Why isn't any 4 party entitled to an exhibit if they want it?

5 MR. MARKS: What about just a
6 provision that requires notice to the other 7 party if the request is made?

8 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, all
9 parties get -- I don't think we ought to do 10 that, John. That just puts another burden on 11 the clerk. Everybody gets notice. If you
12 want your exhibits, come get them. Two people 13 show up. This says the clerk makes a copy.
14 Maybe there ought to be some other --

15 MR. McMAINS: The other problem
16 is that it's not always the party's document 17 even though it's the party's exhibit. I mean, 18 it's not unusual that I as a plaintiff will 19 offer as an exhibit a defendant's original 20 document, or more likely a copy, so it's my 21 exhibit but it happens to be somebody else's 22 documents. It's more likely that the 23 defendant is the one that doesn't want it 24 circulated. So I'm not sure how you can have 25 the clerk or anybody else messing around with

1           whose it is.

2                           MR. ORSINGER: Well, if it's an 3 exhibit, if it was offered, it's going to have 4 "Plaintiff's Exhibit" or "Defendant's 5 Exhibit" on it, and that's pretty simple.
6 Now, where you go beyond that, I don't know.

7                           CHAIRMAN SOULES: Let me
8 suggest this, Bonnie, or to everybody. Let's 9 make the second paragraph, "If the court has 10 ordered or any party has requested," make it 11 parallel the last one: If the exhibit is a 12 document, the party who offered it shall be 13 entitled, but the other party can get a copy 14 at the other party's expense. That may need 15 to be an additional paragraph.

16                          MR. ORSINGER: And what is the 17 consequence of your change?

18                          CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, do you 19 see the very last paragraph, not capable of 20 reproduction, well, if it is capable of 21 reproduction, the party who offered it gets 22 it, and if the other party wants it, they have 23 to pay for the copy.

24                          MR. ORSINGER: Okay.

25                          CHAIRMAN SOULES: And you still

1           may need the middle paragraph there for the 2           situation where two parties want the exhibit, 3           neither of whom offered it. Then you would 4           make a copy and prorate the cost. That takes 5           care of I guess all the permutations.

6                       MS. WOLBRUECK: Okay. We'll 7           make those changes.

8                       MR. GOLD: Question.

9                       CHAIRMAN SOULES: Paul.

10                      MR. GOLD: Is there some sort 11           of provision about how the clerk disposes of 12           the documents?

13                      DORIS LANGE: Shred or burn.

14                      MR. GOLD: My question is, if 15           neither party claims the exhibits and some 16           third entity wanted the exhibits, is there 17           anything that prevents the clerk from 18           releasing the exhibits to the third entity?

19                      CHAIRMAN SOULES: The answer to 20           that is no, there's nothing that precludes 21           it. The clerk can do whatever they want to if 22           nobody wants them.

23                      MR. ORSINGER: Well, what do 24           the rules promulgated for the destruction of 25           documents say? Are you required to destroy

1           them, or can you give them to whoever you 2           want.

3                           MS. WOLBRUECK:  It depends on 4           what it is.  It just basically tells us how to 5           destroy something.

6                           MR. ORSINGER:  It doesn't 7           require you to destroy it?  You could just 8           give it away?

9                           MS. WOLBRUECK:  That's right.

10                          MS. LANGE:  It depends upon 11           what it is.  I mean, I can't give the local 12           historical society records because I no longer 13           want them.  The county clerk is required to 14           either burn or shred.

15                          CHAIRMAN SOULES:  By statute.

16                          MS. LANGE:  We can't give 17           documents, like I said, to anyone that we want 18           to.

19                          CHAIRMAN SOULES:  That's by 20           statute?

21                          MS. WOLBRUECK:  That's by 22           statute.

23                          CHAIRMAN SOULES:  Okay.  Well, 24           there's nothing in the rules.  Maybe there is 25           something else somewhere.  Okay.

1 MS. WOLBRUECK: Okay.
2 Continuing then, (k) has to do with -- this is 3 Rule 119a, copy of the decree. Basically this 4 just directs the clerk to mail a copy of the 5 final decree. We have taken out "or order of 6 dismissal," because that's actually addressed 7 under "appealable order" and that notice is 8 already being mailed, so there's no reason for 9 the clerk to be required to do that.

10 I have one question of this Committee. I 11 think this comment has come up before. This 12 seems to be a Family Code issue, and if this 13 Committee would like it, the Clerks Committee 14 would pursue trying to place this into the 15 Family Code through legislative action, or 16 would you prefer that this stay in the rules?

17 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Family
18 Code.

19 MR. ORSINGER: Don't just 20 assume that if you take it out of here it's 21 going to show up. It might show up or it 22 might not show up, or it might show up with an 23 entirely new list of amendments stuck on to it 24 that you've never dreamed of. If you want 25 this to happen, my recommendation is let's

1 leave it here until it's already in the Family
2 Code and then let's take it out.

3 MS. WOLBRUECK: If we try to 4 duplicate it in the Family Code, that 5 shouldn't cause any problems then if it's just 6 duplicated, and then we can remove from the 7 rule.

8 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Agreed.

9 MS. WOLBRUECK: Everything else
10 concerning -- you know, this is really a 11 Family Code matter and I think it would 12 probably be easier for the clerks if it was 13 there.

14 MR. McMANS: Do you only send 15 a copy of the decree in a waiver situation?

16 MS. WOLBRUECK: That's 17 correct. That's the only time.

18 Okay. (1) has to do with the notices
19 required of the clerk. The first one is the 20 default judgment, and this is just some 21 clarification of that. It really doesn't 22 change anything. It just sort of -- and I
23 think this rule has been addressed under 239a 24 and basically it's the same just with some 25 cleanup.

1           Number (2) has to do with the appealable
2 order, and I think 306a has been addressed 3 before, and we wanted to duplicate it in the 4 clerks rule. It probably, and correct me if 5 I'm wrong, on the second line it should 6 probably say "give notice of the signing to 7 each party or the party's attorney" instead of 8 "to the parties." Is that the correct
9 language instead of just "to the parties"?

10           PROFESSOR ALBRIGHT: I thought 11 we were doing "parties," and then there was 12 going to be a rule that if a party was 13 represented by a lawyer, you give notice to 14 the lawyer.

15           CHAIRMAN SOULES: "Parties"
16 should be good enough. We ought to fix that 17 in a general rule.

18           MS. WOLBRUECK: Okay. I
19 remember going back in notes and I know it's 20 been addressed both ways and I wanted to make 21 sure that we addressed it right.

22           Number (3) is that disposition notice 23 that we want to include concerning the 24 exhibits and discovery, and we will include 25 that. It basically states that it shall be

1 included in the default notice and the 2 appealable order notice.

3 Number (4) has to do with something that 4 we were requested to look at which has to 5 do --

6 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Let me ask
7 you this. Are you talking about putting (3), 8 making it part of the default notice or a part 9 of the appealable order notice?

10 MS. WOLBRUECK: Yes.

11 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Why don't you
12 just say in (3) this may be given in the 13 notice of default or appealable order. Then 14 you can give either way and it doesn't affect 15 the validity of the other.

16 MR. ORSINGER: What is your 17 purpose in doing that, Luke?

18 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, the 19 clerk may or may not give this notice with the 20 default notice or the appealable order notice.

21 MR. McMains: If they don't 22 give a disposition notice, it doesn't affect 23 the validity.

24 CHAIRMAN SOULES: It doesn't
25 have to be a part of the default notice; it

1 can be. It doesn't have to be a part of the 2 appealable order, but it can be. And if it 3 is, it's effective to cover (3), which is what 4 the purpose of it is, is to get (3) out.

5 MS. WOLBRUECK: Yes. But 6 before the clerk disposes of anything,
7 wouldn't you want the clerk to make this 8 notice?

9 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Right. All
10 you're saying is this number (3) notice, 11 disposition notice, may be given with the 12 other notices.

13 MR. ORSINGER: Yeah. She's 14 going further with that. She's saying it must 15 be given with one or at least one of the other 16 notices. If you're going to send the notice, 17 you have to include the statement about the 18 destruction of the records.

19 PROFESSOR ALBRIGHT: Richard, I
20 think what Luke is saying is you don't want 21 that notice to be defective just because it 22 doesn't give you notice of disposal of 23 exhibits 20 years later.

24 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, why
25 should we burden the clerk? If I'm

1 understanding Richard to be saying, if this 2 number (3) notice, disposition notice, is not 3 given with one of those other notices, it can 4 never be given.

5 MR. KELTNER: Right.

6 CHAIRMAN SOULES: That's not 7 what we want.

8 MR. ORSINGER: Well, this rule
9 says that should never happen, what you just 10 said.

11 CHAIRMAN SOULES: But that's 12 the way it is done now and that's probably the 13 way it's going to continue to be done until 14 clerks adjust to this new practice, I think.
15 I don't know. Next, Bonnie. Or Rusty, excuse
16 me.

17 MR. McMANS: Well, we kind of 18 went over it real quick, but on the appealable
19 order, does our rule now say you give notice 20 of the final judgment or an appealable order?

21 MS. WOLBRUECK: It actually
22 says "or other appealable order." And I 23 apologize, I've made myself a note of that.

24 MR. McMANS: I'm just 25 curious. That places a rather significant

1           burden on the clerk to determine what an 2           appealable order is. That's fine if that's in 3           there and if it's been in there, but I don't 4           know if there is some other way that we could 5           deal with it.

6                           CHAIRMAN SOULES: We've been 7           around and around that issue even in these 8           sessions.

9                           MR. McMANS: Well, we know 10          within 306a in terms of what the effect of not 11          getting the notice is. But in South Texas, a 12          lot of counties in South Texas, they don't 13          give you notice of final judgments, let alone 14          any other orders. Never.

15                          CHAIRMAN SOULES: I know. But 16          it's there, and it works in both places. Don 17          Hunt.

18                          MR. HUNT: Proposed Rule 19          304(e), which deals with effective dates and 20          beginnings of periods, which was old 21          Rule 306a, I think, was written in terms of 22          final judgment or appealable order to comply 23          with the definition of final judgment but 24          leaves the ideas that there can be orders that 25          are appealable. But the rule doesn't try to 1 determine whether the order is appealable or 2 not because the rule doesn't speak to that.

3 The other rules and statutes speak to that.
4 But it is written in terms of notice to the 5 party or party's attorney, but it just simply 6 says each party or the party's attorney.

7 Now, what you have written here talks
8 about "to the parties." I don't know that we 9 need to change this, but at least this just 10 says "to the parties" where the proposed rule 11 on notice of judgment says when the final 12 judgment or appealable order is signed, the 13 clerk shall immediately give notice of the 14 signing to each party or the attorney.

15 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Or the 16 party's attorney.

17 MR. HUNT: Well, it should say
18 party's attorney. I'm sure we left the word 19 "party's" out of the language.

20 MS. LANGE: So it should say 21 "of the signing to the attorneys of record or 22 the parties." That way the attorney would 23 have first priority notice. And then if you 24 don't have an attorney, then you do it to the 25 parties.

1 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, Doris,
2 we've already passed this language here, and I 3 think what we want to do is, the suggestion is 4 we make it identical.

5 MR. ORSINGER: How would it
6 read, Don?

7 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Notice of the 8 signing to each party or the party's
9 attorney.

10 MR. HUNT: Give notice of the 11 signing to each party or the party's attorney.

12 MR. ORSINGER: Shouldn't we say
13 attorney of record?

14 MR. HUNT: We've struck "of 15 record" before.

16 MR. ORSINGER: Okay. Then how 17 do we know who their attorney is if he or she 18 is not of record?

19 MR. HUNT: Well, we don't. But 20 that's not a problem of the clerk. The clerk 21 either knows or the clerk doesn't know, and if 22 it's in the record, the clerk can send it to 23 the attorney of record. But we don't want to 24 get into a fight over who was of record and 25 who wasn't.

1 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Bill
2 Dorsaneo.

3 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: One of the 4 things that's happening consistent with what 5 we've talked about probably some three years
6 ago now is that all of these reports,
7 including the Hunt Committee report, are being 8 reorganized in terms of the task force 9 organization. And we're planning on putting 10 everything together with due regard for these 11 general principles. And obviously we'll need 12 to have a lot of people read and make certain 13 that we follow that, but the wording of any 14 one of these things is really subject to some 15 manipulation in accordance with the overall 16 attitude of the committee about whether it 17 should say "party" or "party's attorney," or 18 you know, general ideas.

19 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Why don't we 20 just have a general rule, "notice to an 21 attorney of record or an attorney is notice to 22 a party."

23 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: I just 24 made a note to go and take that out of your 25 Rule 304, because in section (2), in service

1 of citation, pleadings and motions, it will 2 say that you serve on counsel if there is 3 counsel.

4 CHAIRMAN SOULES: But keep in 5 mind that this is not talking about what the 6 parties do, this is talking about what the 7 clerk does, which is not covered in service.

8 MR. McMANS: It also doesn't 9 say "service," it says "give notice."

10 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Right. So
11 that may have to be broadened some. Going 12 forward.

13 MS. WOLBRUECK: Okay. Going on 14 to (4) now on the settings, this has to do
15 with -- we were asked to address Rule 246, 16 which is actually on the last page of this 17 handout, but basically it talks about a notice 18 of setting.

19 And if you would like to go back to -- go
20 to 246, which is on Page 22 and 23. Basically 21 this has to do with that notice. We were 22 requested to address this, and in doing so, if 23 you would look at (c) on "Notice," it has to 24 do with "Any party setting a case for trial 25 shall immediately notify all other parties of

1 the trial setting by written notice and shall 2 file a copy of such notice with the clerk of 3 the court. If the court on its own initiative 4 sets the case for trial, the clerk of the 5 court shall notify all parties of the setting 6 by first class mail."

7 And basically that notice thing is 8 repeated in the clerk's duties under number 9 (4). And this would then be a change in what 10 was 246 and what's been combined now as 11 Rule 245(a), (b) and (c).

12 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Where is the 13 first piece of that old rule?

14 MS. WOLBRUECK: It was Rule 246
15 on the last page. Rule 246 started off, "The 16 clerk shall keep a record in his office," the 17 part that is struck there, and then what has 18 happened there, which we've added in (c), 19 which is Notice under Rule 245.

20 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: 245 and 21 246 now overlap, so they were combined.

22 MS. WOLBRUECK: They were 23 combined.

24 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay.

25 MR. ORSINGER: Luke, there was

1 no (a) or (b) to Rule 246. That (c) is 2 because it's now been folded into Rule 245.

3 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay.

4 MR. ORSINGER: I think it
5 probably should be said for the record that 6 it's not our conception that this would 7 prohibit the court from dismissing a case for 8 want of prosecution at a regular docket
9 setting or trial. This requirement of notice
10 of settings would be if you're going to set it 11 on the dismissal docket per se. But if you 12 have a trial setting that the party fails to 13 show up for, this doesn't in any way impair 14 the court's ability to strike it, to dismiss 15 it.

16 CHAIRMAN SOULES: All right.

17 MS. WOLBRUECK: So that number 18 (4) then requires the clerk to give that 19 notice of any setting either when the court
20 has set it for trial or if there is a 21 dismissal for want of prosecution.

22 MR. ORSINGER: Well, I mean,
23 that gets back -- you know, in some counties
24 you have an order setting all pending cases 25 that says if you don't appear at the docket

1 call, your case will be dismissed. There are 2 other counties where, if the case comes up for 3 trial and you're not there, they just dismiss 4 it based on you not appearing at the trial
5 setting. And I don't think this rule is meant 6 to preclude a trial judge when the case is 7 called for trial from dismissing it for want 8 of prosecution because the plaintiff didn't 9 appear. But I think maybe we ought to have an 10 agreement that that's what that means. I said 11 it so it would be in the record, and I assume 12 that people would agree with me.

13 CHAIRMAN SOULES: What rule are 14 you talking about right now?

15 MR. ORSINGER: (4).

16 CHAIRMAN SOULES: It doesn't
17 say that, does it?

18 MS. WOLBRUECK: And Rule 165a
19 is still there concerning the procedures for 20 that.

21 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: I have one
22 question about 245 and 246. I realize that 23 246 as currently worded talks about what the 24 clerk should do. 245 as currently worded
25 talks about what the court should do. It says

1 the court may set contested cases and then it 2 says "with reasonable notice of not less than 3 45 days."

4 If you didn't talk to anyone, you 5 probably would conclude that the court or some 6 part of the court is meant to give reasonable 7 notice of not less than 45 days, rather than 8 having that be left to the party. And if you 9 weren't a clerk, you would probably think that 10 the part of the court that would do that would 11 be the clerk, not just when the case is set on 12 the court's initiative, but all the time.

13 I realize after talking with you, Bonnie,
14 that the district clerk may not actually know 15 unless there's some procedure set up to check 16 and have that information transferred, you
17 know, to a different floor in the building.
18 But shouldn't it be the case that the clerk
19 does this all the time, notices of settings
20 all the time, or just on the court's 21 initiative?

22 MS. WOLBRUECK: Of all
23 settings?

24 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Trial
25 settings. This is trial settings, not motion

1 settings.

2 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Yeah.

3 MR. ORSINGER: The issue here
4 is clerk versus coordinator.

5 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Well,
6 there are no coordinators in a lot of places.

7 MR. ORSINGER: Well, in the 8 outerlying counties the trial dockets are 9 maintained by the coordinator that follows the 10 district judge around, not by the clerks. So 11 if you have a district judge with four 12 counties, the trial setting comes from the 13 coordinator whose office is next to the trial 14 judge, and the clerk over there doesn't find 15 out about it for a week or so, if then.

16 MS. WOLBRUECK: Right.

17 MR. ORSINGER: If ever. So 18 we're trying not to say that it's just the 19 clerk that does it when in reality in a lot of 20 instances it's the coordinator who does it.
21 So it was intentionally left that it's a duty 22 of the court, and then the court is going to 23 decide whether it's the clerk or the 24 coordinator that does it.

25 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: But it's

1 the clerk if the court does it on its own
2 initiative.

3 MR. ORSINGER: No, it shouldn't 4 be.

5 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Well,
6 that's what it says.

7 MR. ORSINGER: Well, then that 8 slipped through, Bonnie.

9 MS. WOLBRUECK: No, I think 10 that our discussion in our subcommittee was, 11 when we discussed this, that whenever the 12 court only sets it on their own initiative, 13 like the parties aren't notified or for some 14 reason or another they aren't in court and 15 they don't know, the court has determined that 16 on their own initiative they have decided that 17 the court is going to set this case, somebody 18 has to notify them.

19 CHAIRMAN SOULES: But Bill's
20 point with his sharp eye is that in the second 21 line of this number (4), Settings, it says 22 "the clerk shall notify." It doesn't say the 23 coordinator or somebody else.

24 MS. WOLBRUECK: Which is the 25 way we had intended it, because that's only

1 when the court sets it on his own initiative.

2 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Then the 3 clerk must notify?

4 MS. WOLBRUECK: Then the clerk
5 notifies. Because otherwise, if the party has 6 set the case, they notify each other according 7 to Rule 245.

8 MR. ORSINGER: But the 9 distinction I'm drawing, and I could be wrong 10 or maybe we changed our mind later, but we 11 were not saying that the clerk necessarily was 12 the arm of the court that gave the notice,
13 because in many instances it's the coordinator 14 who is the arm of the court that does it. And 15 therefore, we stayed away from saying "clerk, 16 clerk, clerk" and said "court, court, court," 17 and then let the courts decide whether it's 18 the coordinator that does it when it's on the 19 court's own initiative or whether it's the 20 clerk that does it when it's on the court's 21 own initiative.

22 MS. WOLBRUECK: So would you be 23 prefer that number (4) then be taken out of 24 the clerks rule?

25 MR. ORSINGER: No.

1 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Is the 2 coordinator a deputy clerk?

3 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: They 4 should be.

5 MS. WOLBRUECK: They are not,
6 only -- they should not be. I disagree.
7 They're not hired by the clerk and not under 8 the clerk's bond, so they cannot be deputy 9 clerks.

10 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Well, let's 11 leave it this way. This just shares notice of 12 the setting.

13 MR. ORSINGER: This is 14 different from what the committee decided.
15 And I don't care, but Bonnie, I want to be 16 sure that we're reading from the same page.
17 This requires the clerk to issue the notice 18 even though the local practice might be for 19 the judge's coordinator to issue the notice.
20 And if we go to the books with this, there are 21 going to be a lot of people that are in 22 noncompliance.

23 MR. KELTNER: Richard, it may 24 even be worse than that. When we're using the 25 term "on the court's own initiative," let's

1           assume that the judge is in a hearing and he 2           says, "All right. I'm tired with all of 3           this. This case is going to go to trial on 4           March 20th. That's when it's going to trial."
5           And it's in front of all counsel. That's 6           obviously on the court's own initiative, but 7           now we're going to have the clerk having to 8           tell them to get the reasonable notice 9           situation. Now, that doesn't make a whole lot 10          of sense. The clerk is probably not the one 11          set up to do this, unfortunately, under our 12          practice now.

13                           MS. WOLBRUECK: I agree. And 14          the subcommittee had tossed this around a 15          great deal and was concerned about how to 16          handle this issue, because that same issue had 17          arisen as far as the court sets it on their 18          own initiative and all parties are in the 19          courtroom and they know that it's being set,
20          and that's where our concern was, and I agree 21          with you in trying to come up with that 22          determination.

23                           CHAIRMAN SOULES: But there's a 24          deputy clerk in the courtroom, isn't there?

25                           MS. WOLBRUECK: Not in all

1 counties, though. In the smaller counties
2 it's very often that there's not a clerk or a 3 deputy clerk in the courtroom.

4 MR. KELTNER: And I've got to 5 tell you, in Tarrant County there isn't.

6 MR. ORSINGER: Well, there
7 isn't in San Antonio either. They're always 8 in the office doing administrative work.

9 MS. WOLBRUECK: The Clerks
10 Committee, in answer to Richard's concern, the 11 Clerks Committee had decided that one of our 12 issues with 246 was the "require the clerk to 13 keep a record," number one, if you go back to 14 for 246, "of all cases set for trial," which 15 in reality today is not happening, because 16 court administrators or court coordinators are 17 setting the cases for trial. And it required 18 the clerk to give notice if an attorney had 19 requested that. So in lieu of that, we tried 20 to work out a compromise as to how this could 21 be addressed, and then in doing so, this 22 notice that this compromise had come up as far 23 as if the party sets the case, which seems to 24 be a common practice throughout the state, if 25 the party sets the case, they are to notify

1 the other party of that setting. I'm not sure 2 that that happens in every county, but in many 3 counties it does.

4 But the issue then becomes if the parties 5 did not set the case and it's set on the 6 court's own initiative, how are the parties
7 going to be notified? And possibly leaving 8 the clerk in the circle, the clerk is going to 9 have to coordinate that with their court then 10 in every county to try to determine how 11 number (4) can take place, and it may be a 12 local issue on how it can take actually place.

13 MR. ORSINGER: Well, in my view
14 we ought to say "court." And in my experience 15 in a multicounty district, I can never find 16 out when there's a trial setting by calling a 17 district clerk. I can only find out by 18 calling the court coordinator. And I think 19 that we're going to try to change practices
20 that will not be respected by our rule change, 21 or maybe this isn't a change in the rule. I 22 can't tell. But to me, if we say "court," the 23 court has the duty to issue it. The court can 24 meet that duty through a coordinator or meet 25 that duty through a clerk. And maybe we ought

1 to have an additional exception like David
2 said that notice to all parties in open court 3 obviates the need for first class mail, or 4 maybe we don't want to do that. I don't know.

5 MR. KELTNER: My only
6 objection, Richard, is going to having the 7 clerk do it, because the clerk is the only 8 person in many instances -- and I'm not saying 9 this is right -- who doesn't know when it's 10 set and has no mechanism in many instances to 11 know when it's set.

12 MS. WOLBRUECK: I'm agreeing.

13 MR. KELTNER: Through no fault
14 of the clerk.

15 MS. WOLBRUECK: This has been 16 discussed a great deal, I want you to know.
17 The clerks are willing to do whatever we can 18 do to facilitate this, but I realize that 19 there is a problem, because understandably, 20 there's 254 counties in the state and it's 21 done 254 different ways. And from the urban 22 counties to the smaller counties the issues 23 are quite different as far as who has that 24 information.

25 PROFESSOR DORSANEO: Why

1           couldn't this be rewritten to make reference
2           to the court coordinators?

3                       MS. LANGE:    Because court 4           coordinators are not bonded and --

5                       PROFESSOR DORSANEO:   No, I 6           don't mean that.  I mean, say, "The clerk of 7           the court shall notify all parties by first 8           class mail unless the court coordinator 9           handles it or is in charge of it."

10                      DORIS LANGE:   That's why we 11           would like it to say "the clerk of the 12           court."  If it's a coordinator doing it, then 13           it's up to the coordinator to let them know of 14           the setting, but it needs to be up to the 15           court where the case is filed that has the 16           information so you as attorneys know where you 17           can call.

18                      MR. ORSINGER:   Well, should we 19           understand that the clerks are happy taking 20           over this additional responsibility to hunt 21           down someone that's not an employee and be 22           sure they know when the trial settings are?

23                      MS. WOLBRUECK:   The majority of 24           the clerks, yes.

25                      CHAIRMAN SOULES:   Right now

1 under 246, "The clerk shall keep a record in 2 his," it says, "office of all cases set for 3 trial." The coordinator is supposed to be 4 telling the clerk that and the clerk is 5 supposed to have a record of that under 246
6 right now. And they're willing to do --

7 MS. WOLBRUECK: But in reality,
8 you know -- I'm sorry, but in reality that 9 doesn't happen.

10 CHAIRMAN SOULES: Okay. Let's
11 take 30 minutes and have our lunch and then 12 try to be back here shortly after 1:00 13 o'clock. Lunch is served back at the back of 14 the room here.
